

100 Million to Be Sought From Tax Evaders in Federal Drive

Treasury Officials are Spurred by Roosevelt Statement
TWO-WAY PROGRAM
Fraud Proceedings May Mean Jail Sentences And Fines

Washington—(AP)—Revenue authorities disclosed today they hope to transfer $100,000,000 from the pockets of tax evaders to the federal treasury.

The officials, spurred by President Roosevelt's broadside against wealthy tax dodgers, agreed on a two-way program of prosecution and evasion-proof legislation.

They said fraud proceedings, involving possible jail sentences and heavy fines, would be recommended to the justice department whenever evidence justified, and that several changes in the tax laws would be sought to seal existing loopholes.

Fraud actions, in which penalties amounting to 50 per cent of the tax may be imposed, may total more than $100,000,000.

Additional Revenue

Substantial additional revenue also is expected from civil proceedings against persons not criminally liable and from revision of the tax structure. Authorities said the entire campaign probably would bolster revenue by $100,000,000 or more.

Mr. Roosevelt indicated yesterday that recommendations for legislation to reinforce the tax structure would be completed soon.

The internal revenue bureau already has issued a regulation designed to prevent persons with large incomes from escaping taxes by transferring assets to foreign corporations set up for that purpose, but additional bulwarks against this device may be sought in legislation.

A suggestion for plugging loopholes was that upper-bracket taxpayers be required to file more detailed returns so that accountants could trace deficiencies more easily.

Senator LaFollette (D-Wis.) said today that if an administration bill to plug loopholes in the tax law is proposed, he would use it as a vehicle for proposing an increase in taxes.

Barcelona Hit in Rebel Air Attack

At Least 70 Reported Killed and Over 100 Wounded

Barcelona, Spain—(AP)—Seven heavy insurgent air raiders scattered bombs over a wide area of Barcelona today, killing at least 70 persons and wounding more than 100 others.

(This dispatch was delayed 15 hours, apparently by censors in Barcelona, the Catalan provincial capital.)

The armada of trimotored planes, evidently sent from an insurgent base on the island of Mallorca, thundered over the sleeping city about 3:30 a. m., Valencia, capital of the main government to the south, was attacked at almost the same hour yesterday, with many killed.

Several apartment buildings were wrecked. Victims were buried under the debris. The attack lasted only about 10 minutes.

Anti-aircraft defenses were impotent. The batteries speedily went into action but the bombers dove at them and machine-gunned their emplacements.

Washington—(AP)—Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles announced today that the state department, seriously concerned for the safety of its representatives, was considering the possibility of removing the temporary American embassy from Valencia, Spain.

The Spanish report, temporary seat of the loyalist government, was subjected to a terrific insurgent aerial bombardment yesterday in which more than 200 persons were reported to have been killed.

Duke and Wallis Complete Plans for Wedding Trip To Undesignated Retreat

Monts. France—(AP)—The duke of Windsor completed his honeymoon plans today for a trip "by train and by automobile" to an idyllic retreat with Wallis Warfield, who cannot share his title of "royal highness."

This trip will be about 24 hours from Tours, a spokesman said, but no other details were disclosed.

The wedding is next Thursday. Efforts to minimize the effect of King George's letters patent, granting "H. R. H." to Edward but not to his wife or issue, were apparent about the Chateau de Candé today.

The spokesman insisted the duke was not displaying anger and was "sleeping well," although other sources had reported he was in a rage and "ready to fight" his brother's decree.

Up to today, information about the chateau was to the effect that the former British monarch, who abdicated when Britain refused the

Federation Asks Amendment to Wage-Hour Bill

Would Require New Board To Accept Schedules Fixed by Bargaining

Cincinnati—(AP)—Amendment of the administration wage and hour bill to set minimum wages and maximum hours by collective bargaining was urged today by the American Federation of Labor's executive council.

The bill, as it stands, would set up a federal board to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for interstate industries where wage and hour were sub-standard.

The federation would require the board to accept wage and hour schedules fixed by collective bargaining in any of these industries as the standard for the entire industry.

William Green predicted congress would accept this amendment.

Traditionally, the federation has opposed minimum wage legislation for men. In the past, federation leaders maintained that the right to fix minimum wages would imply the right to fix maximums.

Senator LaFollette (D-Wis.) said today that if an administration bill to plug loopholes in the tax law is proposed, he would use it as a vehicle for proposing an increase in taxes.

Some council members, Green said, were doubtful of the wisdom of child labor legislation. They felt he explained, legislation might block adoption of the child labor amendment.

Action on this labor legislation followed the council's admission of the Progressive Miners of America to A. F. of L. membership.

Council members regarded this as their first heavy blow at John L. Lewis in their war against his Committee for Industrial Organization.

The Progressives are rivals of Lewis' own United Mine Workers in Illinois.

Both Green and Joe O'Zanic, Progressive president, emphasized that the Progressives did not intend to fight Lewis just now except in Illinois, but that they would be willing to accept miners dissatisfied with the U. M. W. in any soft coal fields.

Italy and Reich Assail Madrid

Accuse Spanish Government of Bombing Their Naval Vessels

London—(AP)—Italy and Germany accused the Spanish government today of bombing Italian and German naval vessels participating in the neutral patrol of Mediterranean waters east of Spain, and thus complicating international efforts to halt the civil strife.

Soviet Russia, meanwhile, gave assent in principle to a proposal for a truce in the Spanish hostilities but made the reservation that the insurgents first must withdraw all foreign troops and cease war activity. The truce proposal has been virtually shelved for the time being, however.

The Italian representatives on the 27-nation non-intervention committee presented charges that six German bombers had bombed the Spanish port of Valencia, and that seven German bombers had bombed the Spanish port of Valencia, and that seven German bombers had bombed the Spanish port of Valencia.

The German government announced that the commander of German naval forces in Spanish waters had warned the Valencia government against "any repetition of the bombing of German ships on patrol duty. Four German torpedo boats Albatros during a government aerial attack on Palma, Mallorca.

Manhole Cover Kills Man During Explosions

Chicago—(AP)—One man was killed by a falling manhole cover today when a series of explosions in sewers under Fullerton avenue rocked a mile long section of the north side.

The victim, Alfa C. Day, 50, was struck by a heavy manhole cover which smashed through a fifth floor skylight, dropped down the elevator shaft and struck him on the head.

Baltimore divorce as queen, at first would not believe London dispatches telling of last night's disclosure of the decision.

Won't Give Up Fight

Convinced finally of their truth, the slim, blond Edward who will wed Mrs. Warfield at Candé next Thursday, then declined to consider the decree—or the decision of the British government behind it—as final.

How the dark-haired Mrs. Warfield took the decision was not disclosed but it was reliably said that "H. R. H." and coronets had been embroidered on some articles of her elaborate trousseau.

The government's wedding present—as Windsor's friends termed the royal decree—assured to Edward himself for the first time the "title, style or attribute of royal highness" but ruled that "his wife or descendants, if any, shall not hold the said title, style or attribute."

Under the decree, Mrs. Warfield's marriage would make her simply the duchess of Windsor—not "her royal highness," the duchess of Windsor—and would move her many steps down from the social position she had expected.

London—(AP)—The British government's action in denying Mrs. Wallis Warfield the courtesy title of "her royal highness" stirred a controversy today similar to that of last December when the duke of Windsor quit the throne for romance.

While some rejoiced in a decision that meant they never would have to curtsy to the duke's bride, others thought it was "shabby treatment" and looked to the new premier, Neville Chamberlain, to relax the "isolation" policy of his predecessor, Stanley Baldwin.

Observers agreed that the decree apparently was a result of one of the last acts of Baldwin, who waged the battle that ended in Edward's abdication.

Under the heading, "An Act of Clarification," the Times stated that "the king's advisers" decided in keeping with the tradition that a right to the title of royal highness by custom at home, throughout the empire and elsewhere abroad is essentially the attribute of a potential

Voices Plea for Sugar Measure

Michigan Congressman Scores Conditions Existing in Hawaii

Washington—(AP)—Representative Frank E. Hook, Ironwood, Mich., Democrat, criticized social and political conditions in Hawaii today in a new plea to congress for sugar legislation aimed at "protecting the American system."

Hook in a statement published in the Congressional Record accused Delegate Sam King of Hawaii with "deliberate manipulation of misinformation." King declined comment.

The Michigan representative, a member of a house agriculture subcommittee which drafted sugar legislation to which Secretary Hull, Wallace and Ickes objected, replied to a speech by King in the house last week.

Six families, he asserted, "control everything in Hawaii." He charged "no record has been made" of Republican campaign contributions by the "five" corporations in the territory.

Hook published in the record a letter from an unidentified Honolulu resident who contended statehood should not be granted, and asserted residents of Japanese antecedents were "compelled" to remit $10 a month each to their homeland.

Hook said the subcommittee's sugar bill draft should be reported to the house in principle by the committee. He urged "a five" corporations in the territory.

Citing reports President Roosevelt would veto the measure on the ground it unduly favored continental producers and discriminated against the American offshore areas and Cuba, Hook said he would not be "coaxed" and expressed belief the chief executive was being "maligned."

New York—(AP)—George W. Mason, president of Nash-Kelvinator Corp., announced today a $1,700,000 modernization and expansion program for the Nash automobile factory at Milwaukee, Racine and Kenosha, Wis.

The program has for its objective an increase of 20 per cent in production capacity. Extensive changes will be made both at the Racine and Kenosha plants and at the Seamen Body Co. in Milwaukee, the latter a subsidiary.

Modernization of production methods and facilities will constitute the major part of the program; no extensive new building operations being contemplated. The work will be rushed during the summer months and is expected to be completed by early fall before production begins on the 1938 Nash models.

The Appleton Post-Crescent will be published at noon on Monday, Memorial Day.

Pontiff Acts To Encourage Reich Church

Pope Pius Sends Special Message to German Catholics

GOEBBELS IN ATTACK

Propaganda Minister's Speech Hints 'Regenerated' Church

Castel Gandolfo, Italy—(AP)—Pope Pius sent to German Catholics today a special blessing in the midst of the "very grave events" in the third reich—the intense controversy between the Nazi state and the church over widespread "immorality" trials of Catholic priests and lay brothers.

He said to a group of German pilgrims gathered at his summer home here:

"The holy father, feeling himself near to all his German sons, blesses with all his heart and affection not only those present here, but all others who are united by the same feeling of faith and devotion to their religious."

Thus the holy father sought to fortify the church in Germany against a fierce attack by Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of propaganda, on the Catholic clergy at home and abroad.

Goebbels delivered the attack before 20,000 ardent Nazis in Berlin's Deutschland hall last night. It was his reply to George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, who accused Germany's government of foisting atrocity propaganda on the world in the form of the Nazi-published "immorality" trials.

Message to Pilgrims

The pope, who will be 80 years old on Monday, sent an encyclical to Germany before Easter in which he accused the Hitler government of breaking the church-state concordat and encouraging pagan movements.

The pope's message was delivered to a group of pilgrims who brought him the encyclical at the close of four-score years of life. He said:

"We are pleased to see that you come from a part of the great Christian family where very grave events are happening; where there is so much need for insisting on a Christian social life for the individual and for the family."

"To sustain the Christian life and to defend it we already have written to you. Now it is necessary to pray fervently to make the task of the Christian life ever more profound and heartfelt in our sons."

Condition of Banker Called 'Satisfactory'

Honolulu—(AP)—Apparently victorious in a 300-mile race to save the life of George F. Baker, multi-millionaire banker, the yacht Viking arrived in Honolulu early today.

The condition of Baker, stricken with peritonitis, was described as "satisfactory."

Dr. John A. Newell, 70-year old Australian eye specialist who left the liner Niagara in mid-ocean to aid in an emergency operation, said the New York banker "took a turn for the better yesterday and will recover."

The United States coast guard, the navy air service, the public health service and the Canadian Pacific liner Niagara all cooperated to getting the doctor to Baker.

In response to a call for assistance, the cutter Tanager sped to the Viking's side, picking up special medical supplies dropped from a navy plane enroute.

Dr. D. J. Zaugg, public health physician from Honolulu, was transferred with medical supplies from the cutter to the yacht 270 miles southwest of Honolulu yesterday and the race under forced draft from Honolulu started.

Menasha Man Is Fatally Injured In Auto Accident

Hit-and-Run Driver Flees After Mishap on Highway 114

Menasha—A hit and run driver fatally injured Frank Zelinski, 65, 631 Fifth street, Menasha, while he was walking along Highway 114 near "devil's bend" about 8:30 last evening.

Police have been unable to establish the identity of the driver because no clues were left at the scene of the fatal mishap. Zelinski was taken to Theda Clark Memorial hospital in the Neenah ambulance where he died at midnight. He suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and internal injuries.

With Zelinski at the time of the accident was Ben Kallman, Menasha, who told police, "We had been working in the garden and were going home along the plank road when I noticed a black sedan coming from behind toward Menasha. I told Frank to get into the ditch. I jumped for the ditch and Frank was struck. We were about four feet from the edge of the road and Frank was thrown about 40 feet west of where he was hit."

He Drives Away

"The car which was a black sedan, stopped down the road about 2,000 feet and the driver got out and looked over the front end of his car. I ran towards the car but the driver got in and drove off," Kallman said.

Clarence Vetter, 201 Railroad street, Menasha, who was driving north at the time of the accident, said he was driving along Plank road at the time of the accident. He

350 Miners Come to Surface in Illinois

Gillespie, Ill.—(AP)—Evacuation of the Superior Coal company's No. 4 mine at Wilsonville, after almost 200 hours' occupation by more than 350 striking miners, opened the way today for resumption of negotiations toward settlement of the strike.

In an unexpected move, the miners came to the surface at 10 o'clock last night, terminating their eight-day demonstration in support of demands for division of work with unemployed fellow miners.

"This terminates our stay-down strike but our struggles will continue until our demands are met," said John Fisher, president of the Gillespie local, Progressive Miners of America.

The strikers showed little ill effects of their voluntary self-imposed confinement. Although most of the 200-hour demonstration was spent in the tunnels, the men were brought up for frequent sun baths and airings.

John V. Diener, Ex-Mayor, Dies At Green Bay

Served as Head of Municipal Government for 4 Successive Terms

ILL MORE THAN MONTH Served Overseas During World War; Was Leader in Civic Affairs

Green Bay—(AP)—John Vernon Diener, 50, Green Bay mayor for four successive terms from 1929 until April of this year, died at 10:30 this morning in a local hospital. He had been ill with a stomach ailment since shortly after the last election, and underwent a major operation several days ago.

As railroad employee, practicing attorney, World war veteran and finally as mayor, Mr. Diener had for many years been an outstanding leader in civic affairs here. He was the father of six children.

Born in Baraboo, Wis., Mr. Diener went through school there, and then entering Notre Dame university from whose law school he graduated. Coming to Green Bay, he was employed for a number of years as a fireman in the Chicago and North Western railroad. He entered private law practice with Thomas F. Konop, now dean of the Notre Dame law school, in the fall of 1915.

The deceased enlisted in the United States army at the outset of the World war, being commissioned a first lieutenant at Ft. Sheridan and serving two years at the front in the 119th company of the 30th infantry division, an American unit attached to English forces.

No funeral arrangements have yet been made. In addition to his widow and six children, survivors are his mother, Mrs. Nora Diener, Reedsburg, and two sisters and one brother.

2 Children Drown, Parents Rescued

Motorcyclists Unaware Victims Trapped Under Water in Car

Hammond, Wis.—(AP)—Two children were drowned and their parents narrowly escaped death when their car left the highway east of here today and rolled over into a ditch filled with five feet of water.

The children, a boy about 14 years old and girl about 11, were riding with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Watson, St. Paul, when the accident occurred.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson were enroute to Oxford, Wis., when the car left Highway 12 where it crosses an old pond bed.

The parents were saved when Mrs. John Stielke, farm woman, heard the screaming of brakes and summoned aid. At Baldwin hospital the parents were revived by artificial respiration.

Two passing motorcyclists who assisted the unconscious parents from the wreckage were unaware of the two children trapped under water in the rear seat of the car until the father, revived at a hospital, cried:

"Where are my children?"

Rescuers dashed back to the overturned machine and located the children. They had been in the water a half hour. Resuscitation efforts were unavailing.

Score Injured in Clash With Police In South Chicago

Outbreak at Steel Plant First Major Violence In Strike

Chicago—(AP)—The first major outbreak of violence in the five-state steel strike left a score of persons injured today after a bloody clash between approximately 50 policemen and 500 marchers near the Republic Steel corporation's South Chicago plant.

Six policemen and 15 demonstrators, including a woman, were bruised and battered in hand-to-hand fighting two blocks from the main gate of the plant last evening.

It was the third time within the week that police repulsed attempts by strikers to strengthen a picket line in front of the plant. The plant was the only major independent unit operating in the Calumet area of Illinois and Indiana, where 23,000 workers were affected by the strike.

A mass meeting near the field headquarters of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee preceded the demonstrators' march. Speakers voiced determination to close the Republic plant and make the strike 100 per cent effective in the district.

Clash With Police

The parades lined up behind a standard-bearer carrying an American flag and started toward the plant. A half dozen policemen who formed a line across the street with clubs outstretched were pushed aside.

Police reinforcements quickly arrived from the plant. They barricaded the street with squad cars and patrol wagons and awaited the oncoming crowd, clubs ready.

The officers used their sticks freely when the marchers refused to halt. Demonstrators retaliated with flailing fists and brickbats. Shots were fired but no one was wounded.

Less than 10 minutes after the fight began the demonstrators withdrew. Four of the injured marchers were placed under arrest. They and the six injured policemen were treated at hospitals.

Says All Will Close

Joseph Germano, field representative of the Committee for Industrial Organization, declared at the mass meeting all mills in the district would be shut down by tonight.

Union leaders issued a call for an outdoor mass meeting in South Chicago tomorrow to map new plans for a strike at Republic's property. Striking workers of the inland steel corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company were asked to join in efforts to close the Republic plant.

Frank Luverman, superintendent of industrial relations for Republic, said more than 1,000 men were at work in the South Chicago plant. Six of the eight open hearth furnaces were still operating, he said.

Freed From Jail but Is Sent Back Again

Chicago—(AP)—It was "out again, in again" for Thomas Whitehead, 64, and there was a charge, three of cashing a bogus check for $50 in 1932.

Whitehead was seized May 21 as he left the house of correction on completion of a five months term for fraud. He was sentenced to four months in the county jail yesterday for a similar charge.

Police said he will be served with a warrant from Sheboygan, Wis., when he completes the second sentence. He faces a charge of cashing a bogus check for $50 in 1932.

Republic Steel Protests To U. S. Postal Officials

ASK FOR ESCORT

Airplanes Used to Drop Foodstuffs to Men In Mills

Youngstown, Ohio—(AP)—Striking steel workers adopted today a "quit work or starve" policy against men remaining in besieged mills, and the Republic Steel Corp. answered with a protest to United States post office officials.

Pickets stopped mail trucks and trains which they said were delivering food to mills still operating in the Mahoning valley, which has more than 30,000 of the 72,000 men idle in six states.

Republic Steel Corp.—largest of the three companies affected by the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee's strike to obtain bargaining contracts—answered with a protest to postmasters at Warren and Niles, Ohio, asking "suitable escort" for such United States mail trucks delivering mail to our offices.

Employ Airplanes

Republic also employed airplanes to drop packages of foodstuffs to men remaining in its mills. Pickets retaliated by going up in their own planes for scouting purposes.

The S.W.O.C. succeeded in closing one more Republic plant—the stainless steel division at Canton, Ohio today when 300 workers walked out.

In Ohio's Mahoning valley, where most of the plants of Republic Steel Corp. and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., were idle, Philip Murray, chairman of the C. I. O. Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, fanned the hopes of thousands of idle Youngstown district mill hands with a fiery proclamation:

"We are going to whip Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Republic Steel corporation—they can't stop us."

Murray and his aids in the S. W. O. C. drive to obtain signed bargaining contracts from Republic, Sheet and Tube, and Inland Steel Corp., turned their attention to closing of several scattered mills firing urgent appeals to Washington for federal intervention.

Over 72,000 Idle

More than 72,000 were idle. The S. W. O. C. put forth the claim 77,240 steel workers out of 77,900 employed in the strike-affected mills had joined the walkout but Republic officials in Cleveland disputed the figures. They said steel plants were running at 40 per cent of capacity in Chicago, Canton, Buffalo and Warren, Ohio, and announced that an airplane was employed to drop food to beleaguered workers behind the picket lines in Republic's Niles, Ohio, tin mill.</

Tax and Welfare Program Not Yet Offered Solons

Heaps of Minor Measures Remain for Action In Legislature

Madison—(P)—Governor LaFollette held his tax and welfare program in abeyance this week because of crowded legislative calendars, while the state law makers plodded through a stack of lesser bills.

Both houses have another batch of minor legislation scheduled for action next week.

In spite of rules designed to halt the influx of new measures, both assembly and senate have been lenient in permitting introduction of further bills. Ten were received by the assembly Thursday over the objections of its rules committee, and occasional bills continue to drop into the senate hopper.

The situation caused Senator Herman J. Severson (P), Iola, to introduce a resolution calling for final adjournment June 2, but he admitted he had little hope of its passage.

Small Senate Margin
The Progressives' slim control of the senate remains a major consideration in administration moves. The governor called in the 17 senators in the Progressive ranks this week for a conference on the necessary tax measures in consequence of his signing the $65,500,000 budget, of his proposed governmental reorganization and the highly controversial Wisconsin development authority proposal.

Progressive senators said the executive is opposed to further attempts to change the setup of the University of Wisconsin board of regents and Senator Allen Bushy (P), Milwaukee, moved reconsideration of the Roethe bill, latest to win senate favor, calling for reduction in the number of regents from 15 to 9.

Maneuvering over the WDA bills in the senate kept in doubt the outcome of the administration's "little TVA" plan.

After sidetracking the WDA measure bearing the name of Senator Roland Kannenberg (P), Wausau, senate leaders decided to press for action on this bill rather than wait for the Biemiller WDA bill, passed by the assembly and now in the hands of the joint finance committee.

Delay Kannenberg Bill
By a vote of 17 to 16, however, the senate laid the Kannenberg bill aside for another week. The key vote of Senator Arthur Zimny (D), Milwaukee, ally of the Progressives, decided this action.

Then, when the Capital Times, Madison newspaper, said the delay was caused by senate antipathy to Kannenberg, the Wausau senator attempted to withdraw his bill.

After the senators refused to return the bill to him, Kannenberg told newspaper men he was opposed to "red" legislation and would support "sane amendments" to the measure. The bill, providing for a state power program, has drawn opposition from business men.

An attempt by Senator Joseph C. Rasmussen (D), Racine, to obtain return of Kannenberg's 165,000 Wausau extension division school building bill from the assembly was blocked by that house following charges of "political purposes" by Progressive leaders. The house previously had voted to return the bill, but decided at the last minute to hold on to it.

The assembly, meanwhile, prepared to act next week on a plan to extend the state minimum wage law to apply to men, in accordance with President Roosevelt's announced wishes. A similar bill also is pending in the senate.

The Associated Press reported highest and lowest temperatures yesterday at Bismarck 94, Raleigh 94, Havre 42 and Spokane 42.

SEAMSTRESSES RUSH WORK ON GOWNS FOR THE DUCHESS
With the wedding of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield less than a week away, seamstresses at the Mainbocher establishment in Paris, France, are busily putting finishing touches on the 48 creations the American divorcee has chosen for her wardrobe. A group of them are shown at work.

MacHarg to Undertake Development Of New Visual Education Project

Dr. John B. MacHarg, professor of American history at Lawrence college, and curator of the Lawrence Museum of American history, has been granted a leave of absence for the coming year to undertake development of a new visual education project for Eastern Kodak company, Rochester, N. Y.

Dr. MacHarg has been at work on visual education projects at Lawrence for a number of years, and has developed two separate and patentable ideas revolutionizing costs and production methods of visual education material. One is a cardboard slide holding a single section of 35 millimeter film, which weighs about one-fiftieth of the ordinary slide for home or school projects, and costs about one-twentieth as much to make.

Slide Car
An improved slide carrier enabling easier insertion and extraction of the cardboard slides has also been developed in Dr. MacHarg's laboratory at Lawrence, where his various improvements have been tried out with classes over a period of years. Manufacture of the new type slide by students themselves, demonstrating the ease with which rural and small-town school-teachers could produce their own visual education material at negligible cost, has furnished Dr. MacHarg considerable experimental data in establishing the practicality of his inventions.

Dr. MacHarg will aid in the establishment of a general slide service for use in both schools and homes in his new undertaking at Rochester. The aim of this service will be to popularize "still" films in homes, schools and colleges, and to increase interest in making of films and slides at home, using the kodachrome process of developing color film. Part of his duties will be connected with selecting slide material, and editing descriptive notes to accompany them.

At College Since 1917
Dr. MacHarg came to Lawrence college in 1917. He is a native of New York, and has degrees from Cornell university, Hamilton college, and Columbia. As curator of the American history museum he has assisted in adding materially to the collection at Lawrence.

He has used his own visual education methods in his classrooms for a number of years, accompanying his history lectures with the small slides and carrier which he has made. On his desk is a small projector which he manipulates as easily as most instructors do a piece of chalk, and with which he from time to time by flipping a switch throws pictorial matter connected with the day's lecture on the right-hand wall.

After studying at Leipzig, Dr. MacHarg accepted a faculty post there. He returned to the United States in 1914, and has held faculty positions in this country at Hamilton, Columbia, and Lawrence.

Judge Hits Number Of Juvenile Cases From New London

Three Cases Disposed of in Circuit Court; Four More to Appear

Waupaca—Judge Byron B. Park severely censured the city of New London in open court Thursday afternoon for the unusual number of juvenile delinquents from that city. With three cases disposed of in circuit court this week, four more are about to be brought before the court.

Questioning the reason for so much delinquency, one official volunteered the fact that pool halls and taverns furnish the chief source of amusement. Admitting the need of a program of recreation years ago, the city hired a full time director of recreation, but after a brief period when the program included the entire community, the school claimed his time and the work of the community was neglected.

Harry Chichester, 20, New London, convicted of entering, without breaking the building occupied by the City Dry Cleaners, where $15 was stolen, was sentenced to not less than 1 year and not more than 2 years, to the state reformatory at Green Bay.

Louis Beyer and Louis Johnson, also of New London, were sentenced from 1 to 21 years at the Green Bay reformatory, for breaking into and entering a building occupied by the Mercantile Theater. A total of $25 belonging to Claude Watkins and Lee Macklin, owners of the theater, was stolen there.

The three youths were placed on probation to the state board of control.

Students Present Annual Memorial Day Programs

The annual flag raising ceremony which features the McKinley Junior High school observance of Memorial day was staged at the school yesterday morning and afternoon. Bob Hoolihan, high school drummer, led the parade to the flag pole and was accompanied by a color guard which included Edwin Kerswill, John Weigand, Jake Pawers, Lois Drexler and Carmen Brooks.

Merrick Nelson, teacher, played the bugle as the flag was raised after which all students joined in the flag salute and pledge of allegiance. All students sang the "Star Spangled Banner" and then the Junior high school orchestra sang "Praise to Peace." The drummer and color guard led the parade back to school.

At 3:15 in the afternoon, the students again paraded to the flag pole and sang "America the Beautiful." After this, the flag salute and pledge of allegiance was again given and the flag lowered as Merrick Nelson played "Retreat." He then blew taps and all students dispersed for the weekend.

A Memorial day program was presented yesterday by Wilson Junior High school pupils as the feature of their regular assembly period. A processionary by all Boy and Girl Scouts opened the program after which Donald Newton led the students in the flag salute.

Ira Dominowski and Jerry Loeper were drummers for the processionary with Eugene Williamson and Wesley Latham as the honor color guard. The toast to the flag was given by Dorothy Runge, Joyce Meidam and Eleanor Retza. A recitation was given by Earl Wenzel after which Francis Taylor presented a piano solo.

The Rev. J. B. Hanna gave the address of the day in the school auditorium. The program was concluded with the playing of taps by Ronald Wuergler and Howard Farrand.

Edison fifth-grade school pupils yesterday held their annual Memorial day program at the school. Robert Hansen was featured in the "Story of Memorial Day" as the opening number after which Charles Huebner, Thomas Gardner, David Berman and Robert Hansen presented a tableau.

David Bailin gave the "Gettysburg Address" and then military tap dances were presented by June Johnson, Onno Lee, Phyllis Krieger, Kathryn Benton and Janet Hinton. Short individual plays were staged by Jean Dewey, Lola Mae Buss, Marion Centers and Marian Hart.

Readings during the program were given by Edith Cohen, Iola Goldbeck and Ann Atcherson. As one of the final acts, Richard Bailey, Richard Boon and Charles Alfs staged several war scenes one in which they "went over the top" of chairs covered with green paper. The program was concluded with William Falatic playing taps.

Faulty Headlights on Car May Cause Mishap
The night highway fatality rate is much higher than the day rate, warns the National Safety council in cautioning drivers not to put too much trust in their headlights. Headlight glare is one of the reasons for the high night highway fatality rate and car lights should be tested regularly, the bulletin received at the Appleton Chamber of Commerce states. Headlights should be dimmed and speed lessened while passing cars.

Pegler Tells of Indiana People's Drinking Habits

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—A cruel world may laugh out loud at the diplomatic mishap to Paul V. McNutt in Manila, but little Tom Taggart, of French Lick, Ind., will be one who does not see the humor of the incident. Mr. Taggart's horse fell on his face at the very first jump after years of schooling and training and a few rather dashing victories in the minor politics of the American Legion and his old home state.

As an old horseman, Mr. Taggart set mighty high store by his McNutt. A show-horse, McNutt was, with grace and style and body, an arch to his neck and a big, bold stride. Not a favorite, to be sure, but impressive nevertheless, and Mr. Taggart saw qualities in him which were invisible to impartial experts.

But a man is likely to lean to his own charger, minimizing his faults and the virtues of his opponents and, moreover, anything can happen in racing, baseball and politics. There was a chance that some other steed would be kicked at the barrier or take the fence or run the wrong way, and the hazards of the track seemed as strong against the others.

But then it happened to Mr. Taggart's steed first, and if you look closely you will see Little Tom down there by the first jump giving his McNutt many rapid kicks in the slats as he turns to walk home past the derisive throng in the stands, who always thought Mr. Taggart had nothing better than a quarter-miler, anyway.

And how very odd it is, to be sure, that history should repeat in this particular way in the career of another stalwart Indiana statesman, Mr. McNutt was sent, to the Philippines with high hopes, and at least a little prestige, and hardly had he shaken the wrinkles out of his white linen suits when he was demanding that the natives drink to him ere drinking to their own country, with an implied promise to civilize them with a krag if they didn't.

Mere Drink Caused Trouble in Charles Fairbanks' Life

It was a mere matter of a drink which caused similar embarrassment in the political life of old Charles Fairbanks in the long ago, and was like to ruin that pious Methodist if indeed, it didn't actually put him down.

As to that, my recollection is not quite clear, but the horror of the incident impressed my youthful mind, and I still recall those persistent Tom Powers' cartoons in Mr. Hearst's papers showing Mr. Fairbanks raising a cocktail with a cherry in it.

Mr. Fairbanks gave a political dinner at his home in Indianapolis, and cocktails indubitably were served. His church members were there, and his political dinners were the most painful fact of the whole tragedy was that the news of the cocktails was written by a naive young reporter on a paper which Mr. Fairbanks secretly owned, and printed in the master's own paper to his own awful distress.

Could Hardly Deny Charges of Libel

His Methodist friends wished to know at once if this foul thing were true, and though Charlie may have wished with all his great, honest, straight-forward political heart to deny the filthy libel he could hardly do so at the expense of his own journal and in the face of much testimony.

Prohibition is dead and gone now, to be sure, and it is no longer dangerous on political-moral grounds for a Hoosier statesman to take or even demand a drink, but Mr. Taggart's man, McNutt, went about it in a way that reflects no dignity on a boy who was raised in a land of branchwater, shoe-polish and silo juice.

The Hoosier drinking habits are such that there will be no sympathy at home with a man who puts on airs in a foreign land and makes an international incident of his own place in the batting order as toasts are drunk from crystal shells on tendril stems.

Observe Definite Drinking Rules in Indiana

In Indiana they just pass the bottle, whether corn or square-face, from hand to hand, and any man who wipes the neck on his palm or shirt sleeve ere inserting the same in his features for a friendly drag is deemed to have insulted the Hoosier next before him.

The only rule of courtesy observed in Indiana is that it is no gentleman who would suck the bottom of the bottle up through the neck, an offense which, unfortunately, was rather common during the years of the bone dry law when a man could go to prison for allowing that he could use a drink if someone should seize him by force and sling it down his throat.

What will Mr. Taggart do now, do you think? Send his McNutt down to the tanyard, maybe, and warm up the next best hide in the bar.

Utility Ordered To Reduce Its Rates $240,000

Order Is One of Series Which Follows Investigations

Madison — (P) — The Northern States Power company, which serves an area of west central Wisconsin embracing one-sixth of the state, must reduce its rates $240,000 a year under an order issued today by the state public service commission.

The order was one of a series handed down in the course of a general rate investigation of the company since 1935.

In addition to previous cuts ordered for farm customers and gas users, will be divided as follows:

Home users of electricity, $100,000; commercial lighting, $110,000; commercial cooking and heating, $11,000; wholesale rates to eight customers, including six municipal utilities, $21,000; rates to farm customers, $3,000 in addition to previous orders; rates to municipal water utilities, $8,000.

10 and 16 Pct. Cuts The residential reduction amounts to 10 per cent and the commercial reductions to about 16 per cent. The new schedule goes into effect on July bills except for wholesale and street lighting rates.

While a final order will be issued after the investigation is completed, the rate body said:

The commission is of the opinion that a major revision of the electric rates of this company is necessary at this time and is warranted by the record in this case so far established.

For the larger cities the effect of the order follows:

LaCrosse—9,729 residential users, saving $35,000 a year; 1,605 commercial users, saving $40,000.

Eau Claire—6,919 residential users, saving $24,000; 399 commercial users, saving $25,000.

Chippewa Falls—2,354 residential users, saving $7,500; 458 commercial users, saving $8,500.

Menomonie—1,509 residential users, saving $5,000; 301 commercial users, saving $5,600.

Sparta — 1,181 residential users, saving $4,300; 273 commercial users, saving $5,000.

New Schedules

The new schedules for home users are:

LaCrosse Eau Claire, Chippewa Falls, Sparta and Menomonie—60 cents monthly fixed charge plus 35 kilowatt-hours at 4.9 cents each, the next 85 at 3 cents each, the next 200 at 2 cents each, and all over 320 at 1.5 cents each.

Civil Service Is Major Issue for Michigan Solons

Many Controversial Questions Affected by House Dispute

Lansing, Mich.—(P)—Civil service suddenly became the axis around which major legislative issues revolved today.

Offshoots from a stubborn house division over the proposal reached into the entire administration program and affected many controversial issues. Steady insistence by Republican sources as well as Governor Murphy appeared to have stirred up a defensive attitude which caused some members to threaten to act against administration measures unless the pressure is relieved.

Behind the civil service bill, which has passed the senate but has been held in the house state affairs committee, was the possibility of a post election campaign carried directly to the public.

It was authoritatively stated that Murphy, should the legislature refuse to install the merit system in state government, will join a movement to initiate the law.

Fetters Needed

To do this, petitions would have to be circulated. When sufficient signatures had been obtained the issue would have to be submitted again to the legislature—possibly in a special session called especially for the purpose. Should the legislature again fail to act, or should it change in any particular the bill initiated by popular petition, the proposal would go to the voters.

Governor Murphy believes the house will report and pass the bill. He also believes his administration program, involving welfare reorganization, prison and parole reform and labor acts, will be approved. He is aware, however, of the fact that some opponents of civil service have threatened to oppose his measures until administration forces consent to pigeon hole the proposal.

Patronage Factor

Some county chairmen of both parties were reported to have urged legislators to work against the civil service bill, evidently on the theory loss of patronage would be harmful. Proponents of the bill, on the other hand, take the view that elimination of patronage would be helpful, both politically and in the interest of government.

The administration program, except the labor relations bill, has been approved by the senate. No important part of it has been acted upon by the house. Various reasons for the delay have been advanced, some representatives claiming the senate has been dilatory in acting on house measures.

Aside from the merit system bill, the budget appeared to be the only real stumbling block to adjournment. Hope of finishing the session by June 1 had been abandoned, the house having refused to accept that date. Leaders now plan on trying for adjournment June 18, making the session the longest in Michigan history.

The king's decree was a specific ban against use of the royal title by the future duchess and at the same time was the first according to "H. R. H." to Edward himself.

On the latter point, it was disclosed that the king's action was necessary because the duke actually had forfeited royal status when he abdicated and renounced the throne for himself and his descendants.

New Deal Policy Is Seen as Cause Of Tax Avoidance

Whole Attitude of Administration Criticized, Lawrence Reports

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—This is the season of alibis. The experts told President Roosevelt that the tax receipts would be a certain figure. The budget was made up on that basis. But since March 15 returns it has been evident that there was a big gap.

Now comes the explanation—the big millions evaded their taxes. President Roosevelt told the assembled correspondents all about the tax evaders. There are rich men, it seems, who do not like to pay taxes to the government, so they find the legal loopholes. If the loopholes aren't legal, then the rich men run the risk of going to jail and having a lot of unfavorable items in the newspapers charging them with the crime of tax evasion.

Mr. Roosevelt has been led to believe that a small number of tax evaders exist, but that the taxes they refuse to pay run into the millions. Just how many millions has not been disclosed. But it would appear that if all the income of men in the big brackets were taken 100 per cent by the government and no deductions or exemptions of any kind were allowed, it still wouldn't have been enough to balance the budget last year.

The president made it clear that he did not indict the vast majority of income tax payers. He thought the overwhelming majority were honest and file absolutely ethical returns. His complaint was against the small group who invented the loopholes and he didn't think loopholes should be invented, even if it is legal.

In other words, for years there has been a distinction between tax avoidance and tax evasion. The former is legal, the latter is illegal.

Government Too

The difference lies in the fact that a taxpayer has a right to deduct what the law permits him to deduct. The game of inventing loopholes can be condemned as unethical, but it is not a bit more so than the actual practice of the government itself. Thus when the supreme court of the United States invalidated the processing taxes and these sums were returned to the taxpayers, the Roosevelt administration turned around and slapped an "unjust enrichment tax" on those who recovered taxes. The fact that the supreme court said it wasn't a true tax originally made no difference.

Now, as long as the government plays a game with the taxpayer, there will be avoidance. The British government has had the same experience with the income tax. The more discriminatory and punitive the taxes, the greater the amount of the effort at avoidance, if not evasion.

The whole attitude of the Roosevelt administration has come in for severe criticism, especially in the matter of overassessments. It has been charged by various taxpayers that the government agents are told to make excessive overassessments unless waivers of the statute of limitations are granted.

Question of Equity

Whether or not there are many cases of this kind, the fact remains that tax evasion touches the question of integrity and tax avoidance touches the question of fairness and equity.

If the tax policy of the government of the United States were concededly fair, if its tax collectors came to the taxpayers with clean hands, there would be a different spirit on the part of the taxpayers. The tendency of the government to penalize thrift and to squelch incentive does not, awaken any high sense of generosity on the part of a taxpayer when he finds he can legally deduct a certain item and save himself some taxes.

If it is unethical to take advantage of legal exemptions, then officials in the government itself are to be found who do not hesitate to take advantage of every legal exemption possible. The question of whether a loophole is new or can be classed as an invention and hence is unethical is somewhat novel, because avoidance turns wholly on what lawyers say anyway, and most of the tax payers do not make out their own returns. They would not dare to do so because the law is so complicated it takes a lawyer or tax expert to help a taxpayer make out a fool-proof return.

Fees Involved

If it is unethical for lawyers to tell their clients how to save tax money, then the question of ethics is something for the legal profession to worry about. For the difference between a large and a small fee in not a few instances is the difference between a lawyer who tells his client how to save money legally and one who doesn't save quite as much.

The rolls are full of tax advisers who once worked in some branch of the government and who tell taxpayers how to save money. It's a practice all by itself and the process of tax avoidance is far from abolished either as a legal or a moral one. (Copyright, 1937)

Sophomore Class Wins Spirit Cup At High School

Veverly Eggers, Senior, Awarded Scholastic Honor Trophy

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

New London—The sophomore class was awarded the school spirit cup at a final assembly at Washington High school auditorium yesterday afternoon.

Beverly Eggers, senior, won the all-school honor cup for highest scholastic averages for the last school year with a record of five straight A's for each of the six weeks' periods. She carried on subject more than the four which are required. While her standings are considered without a precedent, the rating of grades by letters has been in effect at the school only the past two years and no direct comparison can be made.

Membership in various extra-curricular activities and placing in the Theatrical 1-act play contest decided the number of points earned by each class towards the school spirit cup. The sophomores had 170 points, juniors 167, freshmen 152 and the seniors 150. The freshmen won the 1-act play contest with the sophomores second, juniors third and seniors fourth. The winner received 20 points toward the cup.

Forensic cup and letter awards were made and letter winners announced in various other activities. In oratory Roland Rosenberger received the first place cup, Roy Crain second place; extemporaneous speaking, Harold Herres first and Marlice Moede second; extemporaneous reading, Katherine McNichols first and Polley Hartquist second.

In declamatory non-humorous is considered first place and was awarded to Alice Stanley, humorous to Shirley Fonstad. The cups are engraved with the students' names and may be kept for one year.

Letters in forensics were given to Roland Rosenberger and Robert Wilkins for their work in oratory and Mary Dawson, Alice Stanley and Polley Hartquist in extemporaneous reading.

Dramatics Awards

Those who received letters in dramatics for performing the requirements with merit are Carolyn Calef, Dorice Ziemer, Martin O'Brien, Roland Rosenberger, Rudd McKeljohn and Harold Herres. All are members of the National Theatrical troupe. Membership plus a duplicate of the entrance requirements in a succeeding year are necessary to earn a letter.

New members taken into the Theatrical troupe at the end of the school year are Elizabeth Zernicke, Kathleen Smith, Ethel Knappstein, Robert Wilkinson and Alice Stanley.

Athletic Awards

The following received letters in track this year: Bernard Brault, Philip Clark, Victor Barlow, Ned Demming, Francis Meinhardt, Robert Yost, Robert Schmidt, Douglas Zernicke, Melvin Glocke, Douglas Hoier, Bernard Stern, Donald Stern, William Schmidt, Robert Wilkinson, Leland Kolbstein.

Music Awards

The greatest number of awards was in music for work in the band, orchestra or glee clubs. Most letters went to seniors with none to the freshmen and other classes in proportion.

Following are the seniors: Lorraine Baker, Maud Brown, Margaret Buss, Carolyn Calef, Douglas Fonstad, Eunice Konrad, Harold Spengler, Elizabeth Zernicke, Dorice Ziemer, Bessie Claassen, Kenneth Freiburger, Charity Popke, Anita Roloff, Rachel Spearbraker, Raymond Thiemme, Kathryn McNichols, Jeannette Warnicke, Florence Wege, Opal Tate, Betty Jean Dean.

FORD AND OTHER STRIKE CHARGES

The fracas at the Ford plant the other day during which some union organizers were handled roughly is charged by the company to two sources, "newspapers which have demanded the production of a Ford strike story" and some of the strikers who "require some dramatic occurrence" to hide their failure to influence Ford employees.

In addition the Ford company charged that "government men from Washington," who have attempted for months to involve the company in irregularities were on the ground as spectators, and perhaps stimulators. The departure by the persons involved from the otherwise decorous manners that have attended labor disputes during the last few months involves us in the weighing of stories, charges and accusations that stagger credulity, and, as they fly, from one party to the other, paint those involved as designing and contemptible in their misconduct.

But if we are to have physical violence, serious or otherwise, it will not be amiss to remember that the explanation given by either side seldom stops at exaggeration but most often is knowingly false.

It has been an almost copyrighted claim with strikers when some of their numbers used bricks or guns to charge that the misconduct originated with some thugs hired by the management for the express purpose of giving the strikers an unsavory reputation. Perhaps such a charge is true one out of a hundred times, certainly no more than that.

The likelihood that news photographers hired some bullies to beat up several union organizers is highly improbable. It is too raw to be believed without some evidence. If the Ford Company knows the men were news photographers can it not give their names and for whom they worked?

Quarrels that become bitter generally are adorned by fraud and misrepresentation, sometimes to an amazing degree. If you stir up a hornet's nest of anger and resentment you are likely to hear the buzzing of some lurid tales.

The fact is that no company employing tens of thousands can control the individual conduct of each employe any more than a union whose membership is equally great can correct and discipline all those who belong.

But each side seems to have a rule that it always must protect those who stand back of it even when it knows they have passed the bounds of lawful conduct.

COMMERCIALIZED GAMBLING

The public is getting wise. Slot machines have been taking a terrific beating before practically every assemblage of men who are elected to office and have any care about conserving the respect of their constituency.

Dog racing is receiving the same treatment. Michigan defeated a bill to legalize it. So did New York. Yet many states, New York included, legalizes horse racing and set up the Mutual system of betting supervised by the commonwealth.

Practically nothing could be said in favor of slot machines. Yet one of the most decisive arguments against them, in addition to the Shylock odds with which they treat their mentally stagnant customers, is the fact that they became in populous communities the center of many rackets, that men were sometimes killed for not setting them up in their places of business and often treated to attack.

It has been noticed that with dog racing there is an immediate "increase in population of touts, thieves and crooks" and that the standards and morale of the community are seriously affected by the influx of these parasites.

The same may often be said of professional, commercialized or machine gambling of any sort. Often the owner of such an establishment is known as a "square guy" and may be just that, but he is surrounded by men who have appetites of the sort that demand money whereas they have neither the industry nor intelligence to earn money and are put to crookery and crime to obtain it.

It is noticeable that professional reformers have failed in their attacks upon the criminal gambling game whereas men in our political life who have examined the problems presented have been able to effect something approaching cure, although the goal is still afar.

But supporting these politicians in their good work is a public now thoroughly enlightened and determined that professional gambling is too expensive and besetting a vice for any community to endure.

WHEN RAILROADS CRUMBLE

The high morale of railroad men and officers in the face of handicaps has been demonstrated enough and in the near past.

When we consider that the principal carriers in Wisconsin, the Milwaukee, the Northwestern and the Wisconsin Central, are in bankruptcy because unable to meet their ordinary obligations it will be unnecessary with most people to continue a description of the burdens on railway systems.

Yet if we turn to two other railroads and their controversies before the public Service Commission perhaps we will begin to understand why the Big Fellows are down and why all have been forced to trim every sail.

The Wisconsin and Michigan railroad presented at Marinette before both the Interstate Commerce and the Wisconsin Public Service Commissions its petition to discontinue and abandon its entire line of about 70 miles of railroad. The railroad was once valued at $800,000. Its recent losses have now mounted to $135,000. It is still losing. No new business appears on the horizon. Rolling stock and right-of-way are in bad shape. It will take substantial money to put it in even fair shape, and then only for the purpose of losing some more.

Representatives, principally of Marinette and Menominee, opposed the abandonment. They observe injury to their cities. They are quite willing to have the railroad try it out a few years longer. If it loses another $135,000 they may even pass a resolution praising it for its courage and toss it some violets.

The public seems to expect that a railroad company has the power of coining money, or that if it takes in a million dollars and spends two million it can still pay dividends and taxes.

While the Wisconsin and Michigan was preparing to close its books forever the Green Bay and Western brought before the Commission its petition to discontinue passenger traffic that might have some effect upon Sturgeon Bay, Algoma, Casco and Kewaunee.

The evidence before the Commission showed that only one and a fraction passengers were carried per day during 1936 other than the tourist sleeper traffic. The railroad company had not taken on a dour face the moment passenger business flew out the window. It had watched for ten years as the traffic gradually but persistently petered out. During all that time it had taken losses without whine or grimace.

But there is objection filed against permitting it to terminate these losses. The communities affected naturally do not like the disturbance attendant upon the alteration of what might be called a community habit, although the habit consisted principally of seeing the passenger train and not using it.

Those appearing for the communities in objecting to the discontinuance of service stressed the "moral obligation of the road," citing the fact that 50 years or so ago when it was built the county had contributed.

There is no doubt that moral obligations, however, intangible, will continue to have weight with commissions and with business men although the extent of their effectiveness can be guided by no rules.

But there was another moral obligation that was not mentioned at the hearing. It is the moral obligation upon the part of the public to protect the rights of great industries like the railroads from despoilment at the hands of marauders in any form.

How well has the public carried its moral obligation? It has participated through the jury system in unmercifully trimming railroads regardless of right. It has denounced jurists as "corporation judges" for even raising a moderate voice in behalf of justice. It has permitted politicians who didn't know a steam valve from a ton of coal to make laws which railroads have been forced to obey. And it has sort of smiled as the powers in control shot the tax burden to the ceiling, and seemed disgruntled if a day passed when they couldn't add a new burden to railroads.

Well, the pig is up. And just exactly what has it profited the communities affected to permit the consequences now faced? Perhaps they can use the rusty rails upon the Wisconsin and Michigan to build fences. Possibly someone may buy the cars and convert them into cottages.

But the loss everywhere is simply enormous. Valuable properties have been destroyed. Wealth has been wasted.

The gophers will use the right-of-way and partridge will flutter through the brush that grows there.

They will supplant the sweat and hurry of commerce and the men with the dinner pails.

GROVER CLEVELAND

This is the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Grover Cleveland. He was a great Democrat, a great president, a great citizen. We should gain much in perspective in these troublous times by studying his life.

CONFETTI

Such a simple tribute
When the boys came home!
I watched it from a skyscraper
Like beautiful snow
Showering down
And mingling
With the soil of the gutter.
The mad, light joy of confetti!
How light it must have seemed
On the shoulders of those vets
After the heavy muskets . . .
The ribbons marking the empty space
Of the Buddies they left in France!
Coming home, jobless—
The readjustment,
The hurt and the surprise.
Trying to get used to life
With its strange new compromise.
Confetti! A simple tribute
When our boys came home!

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

SANDERS UNION READER NO. 2
I often think of all the books I've read.
The thousand miles of type I've wandered through,
Since long ago I filled my childish head
With Sanders Union Reader No. 2.

Outside the sun was bright upon the wheat,
But I must stay inside with work to do.
There was a reading lesson to complete
In Sanders Union Reader No. 2.

Soon school would close. With eyes upon the book,
I made vacation plans, and dreamed anew
Of days when I would never have to look
At Sanders Union Reader No. 2.

The teacher's ruler had a metal side.
It stung my hand, if I did not pursue
The story I surveyed with doubt and pride
In Sanders Union Reader No. 2.

Oh well, I'm grateful now! I read and spell,
And really know much more than once I knew!
But how I'd love to follow that school bell—
To Sanders Union Reader No. 2!

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Saturday, May 28, 1927

Approximately 120 rural school athletes were in Appleton Saturday to take part in the annual Outagamie county field and track meet at the Wilson Junior High school athletic field.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Wehrman will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday afternoon and evening at their home, 1512 N. Appleton street.

A mixed foursome will feature the women's golf tournament at Riverview Country club on the afternoon of Memorial day. Mrs. Norman Brekaw of Neenah is chairman of the women's sports committee.

The Rev. J. F. Neinstedt, formerly pastor of the Evangelical church of Racine, who was recently appointed pastor of Emmanuel Evangelical church, succeeded the Rev. H. A. Bernhardt, arrived in the city Thursday. He will preach his first sermon here Sunday morning.

C. S. Buckland, who has been associated for 43 years with the Pettibone and the Pettibone-Peabody company, that day retired from business.

Miss Evelyn Wirth was declared the winner of the Hyde elementary contest at Appleton High school the previous evening. Miss Isabelle King won second place.

With only four entries Appleton High school won the Ripon track meet the previous day with 50 1-5 points. Kuechsted was the individual point maker and established a record for the Ripon meet in the pole vault by jumping 11 feet 4 inches.

of his work than were his contemporaries. He is taking shape in history and his figure grows.

He was called to national responsibility when the Democratic party became the medium for reconciliation between North and South. The old wound was healing. The Democratic party had strong representation in both North and South; the Republican party was of the North. Though the issues were not drawn on these lines, the permanent result of national unification achieved through the election of Cleveland, the Democratic, over-shadowed all other accomplishments of his administration.

And yet, notwithstanding the partisan storms that raged around him, Grover Cleveland was not a party man as that term would now be understood. Elihu Root once wrote of him, "He was a party man without answering to the ordinary conception of a politician. He belonged to a party as a natural incident to the business of citizenship. But he never was a political leader in a personal sense and he never tried to be one. He never tried to collect about himself any group of followers who would promote his fortunes in the expectation that he would promote theirs."—Detroit News.

Personal Health Talks

OUR FRIENDS THE DENTORS

The first school of dentistry was opened in America less than a hundred years ago—the first dental school in all the world. American dentists today are the best educated and the most skillful in all the world.

Prior to 1839, when the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery was opened, there were no dentists. Just doctors, who extracted teeth or treated toothache and even attempted more difficult dental operations, as an incidental of general medical practice.

I never have and never will call a dentist "Dentor," except maybe an intimate friend in fun. Had a letter today from a dentist who says he has been a reader of my articles for years and it is only my unadulterated egotism that prompts him to express himself at this time. Then he gives me a good spanking for my one-man movement to restrict the BUSINESS use of the title "Doctor" to legally licensed, practicing physicians—who had it exclusively until the dentists broke away from the medical profession—and to compel practitioners of dentistry who are not legally licensed physicians to use "Dentor" or some such designation to make known their trade. Like several other irked members of the dental profession this one proposes that physicians give up the title of "Doctor" as a trade-mark and call themselves "Medico."

The founding of the first dental school was a mistake, and the age old narrow-mindedness of the medical profession of the day was to blame for it. A physician, Dr. Harris, had applied to several medical schools to found dental chairs or departments and teach oral or dental pathology along with regular medicine, thus to equip physicians who might elect to practice the special branch of medicine known as dentistry. But the near-sighted big guns of the medical profession couldn't see the wisdom of such a course, and Dr. Harris therefore established the Baltimore school of dentistry which began instruction in 1840.

Bowed with weight of less than a century they stand, these dentors, and, like the camel that got his head inside the tent, they have the gall to propose that physicians give up their 3,000-year-old trade-mark!

Seriously, a good many of the finest dentists agree with me that the time has come to close all dental schools and let students who wish to practice dentistry take their training in a regular medical school, graduate as bona fide M.D.'s and then pursue such special or technical courses as may be required to prepare them to practice that specialty of medicine. It is unjustifiable extravagance and waste to maintain separate schools now. In fact the student in a first-class dental school receives virtually the same education that the student in a first-class medical school receives.

That's all I mean when I call a dental practitioner a dentor.

No one has greater respect for or appreciation of the value of the dentor's work than I have. I sincerely believe that American dentists contribute as much toward health conservation and health betterment as any other specialists do.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Pyorrhea

Year ago I was operated on my lower teeth for pyorrhea. Dentist now wants to operate on upper teeth. But I have heard the relief is only temporary. I am 40. Any advice will be appreciated. (J. W. P.)

Answer—I don't know what may have been done. Any treatment that even temporarily stays the progress of pyorrhea is to be recommended. At the same time be sure to get an optimal ration of vitamins particularly B. D and G.

Or Else
Please enlarge on your recent remarks about quitting highballs "or else." (H. D.)

Answer—Futile to carry the argument further. I merely quoted from the old book "Building Vitality." "Grandfather's doctor granted a liberal amount of 'stimulants' and in due time mounted grand-father's pickled kidney in a jar. Your doctor warns you to cut out the highballs or else."

Your Birthday

"GEMINI"

If May 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. until midnight.

Some figment of the imagination may cause you to have a feeling of apprehension this day. Superstition will also prove to be a disturbing factor, if common sense does not prevail. Do not indulge in unpleasant surmises, for you seem to be entering a period in which Lady Luck will be a frequent visitor. You may be surprised by having an inspiration that will result in your doing something well worthwhile. Romantic or poetic thoughts will bring pleasant day dreams to many of those, whose birth anniversary this is. Do not turn down suggestions so quickly this day, for many will be worth considering. The pen can be instrumental in spreading much happiness, sorrow or worry this day, so reflect carefully on anything you are about to put down in black and white, and be guided by your genuine impulses rather than by motives of sordid considerations or harsh criticism. Married and engaged couples, and those who are in love, must not be self-conscious too quickly this day, for the thing that will afford pleasure or bring happiness to others.

If a woman and May 30 is your birthday, you ought to have a creative mind, one that is constantly active. You perhaps will devise something of great value. You may have an artistic eye and a skillful hand. There probably will be many friends helpful to you in either your social or business life. In all likelihood, you will be the recipient of exceptionally good news or something of value. As a dietician, librarian, secretary, interior decorator, doctor, lawyer, artist, author or business manager your efforts may result in a fine reputation and excellent income. Your marriage should be followed by years of connubial felicity terminating in prosperity and contentment.

The child born on May 30, may during its adolescence, have to learn the importance of controlling its temper and tongue. This youngster must not be permitted to have its own way during its formative years. With the right training a brilliant future should await it.

If a man, and May 30, is your natal day, you may delay overly long in making important decisions. Diligently never pays, so guard against any tendency to procrastinate. Engineering, architecture, chemistry, contracting, acting, journalism, selling, or politics are among the lines of activity in which you ought to do exceptionally well.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Manhattan has many fine restaurants but you will search far and wide before finding any more satisfactory ones than the better Swedish restaurants up in the West Fifties. I suppose it is the excess of hors d'oeuvres which charm the senses and excite the palate, but just wandering around them is one of the highlights of dining in New York.

They tell me a trick in savoring these delicacies is an abundance of pickles. A bite of pickle or condiment should be taken between each hors d'oeuvre, such as a wine taster uses coffee or a cigaret between each sip of grape.

It is not an exaggeration to say that a minimum of 100 kinds of appetizers are laid out for the pleasure of guests, and if you aren't careful there'll be no room for the sumptuous dinner which is supposed to follow the hors d'oeuvres. It's a lot of fun at these places. The attractiveness of the delicacies seems to excite the crowd, and as you go in there is always a crowd milling about the vast center "island," where the hors d'oeuvres are arrayed, laughing, talking, whispering excitedly, choosing this and that item, most of which are wholly unknown to the diner.

And the most delightful phase is the check at the end of the repast. With their rich abundance of excellent food and fine serving, the prices are uniformly small. If you contemplate visiting New York at any time, it would be a mistake to leave without having dinner at least once on one of these throw-backs to old Stockholm, the names of which one may always find in the newspapers.

A unique dinner show and one that is timely is the ice carnival in the Summer Terrace at the New Yorker. It is not so much the ice, rather it is the execution which makes for such rapid attention as the entertainment unfolds. After all, it is soothing, on warm nights, to have the dance floor suddenly converted into an ice rink and then have a host of lovely girls appear magically on skates to glide and zip around on the ice with such poise and ease.

All are expert skaters and, together with a number of real stars on the ice, they provide an hour of such fine entertainment that one's dinner is likely to be forgotten. They swirl with terrific speed, they drift into dreamy Vienna waltzes, they revolve in comedy and acrobatic numbers, all on skates. If

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Political worms don't turn often, but the house, which has been one a long time, has been making a turn of sort and is so delighted with itself it fairly chortles.

Those who saw the house turn against the President's plan to make the CCC a permanent organization will understand.

The CCC has been a popular business ever since the President, freshly seated, told the country he could amass to send poor boys into the forests to be made sleek and sound.

So it was with much surprise that the house developed a real antagonism to make the CCC a permanent institution. The house long has been considered almost wholly subservient to the President. Many of its members concede they rode into office on the President's coat tails and, unlike in the senate, any Presidential disapproval can be reflected against them every two years when they come up for re-election.

Two Fears

The debate began with general expectation that the house would kiss the bill across, even though it would cost about $350,000,000 a year—close on to the cost of the army or navy.

A half hour before the vote was taken, reporters caught some of the drift and hazarded guesses that there "might" be enough votes to defeat the permanent plan. Indeed, there were. They whooped across—224 to 34—an amendment to keep it alive only two years.

Besides the new-found desire for economy, two fears are behind the opposition of many members: First, that some future President might convert it somehow into a wide-flung political organization; second, that it might become an adjunct of the military. Secretary of War Woodring contributed considerably to the latter view. As assistant secretary two years ago he said in a preparedness speech that the several hundred thousand young men put through CCC camps each year could be looked upon as a valuable reserve unit.

He was roundly jumped on by almost everybody from the President down. Actually some of the camps are so imbued with pacifist sentiment that one caustic scribe commented the army would have to lick the CCC before the country could go to war.

Forecast

The debate brought a prediction: Representative Knutson (Republican, Minnesota)—"Personally I do not think there will be any need for the CCC after the New Deal goes out."

A member (unidentified by the record)—"When will it go out?"

Mr. Knutson—"In the forties."

Coal Production Higher in 1936

Bureau of Mines Notes Advance in Mechanization of Mines

Washington—The nation's coal scuttle is filling again with the rising tide of recovery, according to John W. Finch, director of the Bureau of Mines. The 1936 production of coal was 47 per cent greater than that of 1935, and 40 per cent greater than that of 1932, the bottom year of the depression.

As the production of coal increased in recent years, notable advances were made also in coal technology. Engineering and chemical research and invention in the practical problems of combustion were reflected in record sales of small mechanical stokers. These advances were achieved in the face of a difficult price situation.

Increase of production made possible some savings in overhead costs. Prices, however, declined slightly or maintained the level of 1935, despite an increase in wage rates which became effective in October of that year.

In the field of research, the Bureau of Mines is conducting studies to determine the burning, coking, and by-product yielding qualities of coal. In a new plant at Pittsburgh, the only one of its kind in America, intensive studies are being made to determine the amount and quality of gasoline and Diesel engine fuels that can be made from coals.

Cotton Quilts Used To Build Texas Roads

Austin, Tex.—Texans use old-fashioned cotton quilts to build concrete highways.

Cotton quilts—officials say are nothing more than quilts—are used in "curing" newly laid pavement.

It started as an experiment to develop a new use for the state's chief crop but officials found that the mats when wetted and placed on new paving for 72 hours were more efficient than burlap—imported from India—for their purpose.

The moist cotton maintains a constant temperature and prevents the surfacing from cracking. The department has used some 20,000 mats. The same mat can be used many times.

There is nothing miraculous about it. It is at least a pleasing innovation in a city where so much of the entertainment is stereotyped.

That odd looking hombre who wanders the town in knee-trousers and a black beard is a balboob man or the leader of some strange religious cult. . . . He's Oscar LeRoy, still paying off election bets. . . . One day each month for a year he must parade during the noon hour up and down Fifth avenue.

'Cloistered' Is Story of Convent

Opens Next Tuesday at Appleton Theater for Four Day Run

Convent life has for years been the subject of much conjecture. To the average life-loving, worldly man and woman, it presents a problem that is unfathomable for, when convent doors are shut, it means almost certain renunciation of all the things that people hold most dear to them. Yet, to the girl or woman who seeks spiritual happiness and peace within convent walls, the life there is neither tedious nor anything but beautiful. For the first time in two thousand years, the mystery of convent life is being revealed to the layman, and it comes to them through the medium of motion pictures.

'Cloistered,' the great success which is coming to the Appleton theater next Tuesday for a four day run, is the true picture of convent life. It was made in its entirety at the convent of The Good Shepherd, and, since it brings to the public great hidden truths about convent life, was, of course, necessary to the permission of the Vatican authorities before the film could be produced. 'Cloistered' opens with a scene of a young girl asking to be admitted to the Convent of the Good Shepherd. She is interviewed by the Mother General and is finally allowed to enter upon her novitiate. The film then traces her progress to the time when she takes her final vows.

The second feature on this program will be 'Oh Doctor!' starring Edward Everett Horton. The picture takes after the story of the same name with Horton in the role of the chief character, Ned Billop, a hypochondriac who sells his birthright for a mess of pills. He lives to regret the bargain and then regains his heritage by methods which are dangerous and thrilling. The cast includes William Hall, Eve Arden and Thurston Hall. 'Oh, Doctor!' is enjoyable comedy. Good clean fun with plenty of laughable situations and smart lines. Play Hollywood Tuesday night.

Muni and Hopkins

In 'The Woman I Love'

Marking a radical departure from previous aviation pictures of the World War, 'The Woman I Love' emphasizes human drama rather than action drama and thereby achieves a real novelty in film annals. In the title role, Warner Oland, drama king in the human relationships of his three principal characters—Paul Muni, who plays an unpopular and embittered pilot in the French flying corps; Miriam Hopkins, his wife and Louis Hayward, Muni's young observer, who falls in love with Miss Hopkins without knowing she is married to his friend.

Fitted against the most appalling odds of his career, Charlie Chan now sets a new world's record for thrills before a stadium jammed with cheering sport fans, when death fires the starting gun, the wily Chinese sleuth is off on his greatest case in 'Charlie Chan at the Olympics,' featuring Warner Oland again in the title role. These two features, 'The Woman I Love' and 'Charlie Chan at the Olympics,' will be shown at the Appleton Theater on next week Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Jane Withers Becomes

'Holy Terror' of Fleet

Man the lifeboats! Run up the storm signals! 'Ginger' Jane is in the Navy now, as the rollicking star of 'The Holy Terror,' the Twentieth Century-Fox riot of fun show at the Elite Theater today and Sunday.

Laughable, prankish, riotous—a whirlwind of mischief, excitement and joy—that's Jane Withers, in the starring role which makes her the joy of the midshipmen, and the despair of the Admirals.

Aided and abetted in the gayest fun-fest of her madcap career by Anthony Martin, Leah Ray, Joan Davis, El Brendel and Joe Lewis, the angel-faced imp sings her way into trouble, and dances her way right out again.

'Daergemen Courage'

Will be Shown at Rio

A thrilling drama of men's courage in facing death to rescue ill-fated comrades is depicted in 'Daergemen Courage,' which plays on a twin hit bill at the Rio Theater Wednesday and Thursday, with Jean Muir and Barton MacLane in the featured roles.

'Daergemen Courage' takes the audience down in the bowels of the earth and introduces them to plain men who show themselves great in their ability to meet disaster—and to other plain men, who toil with no thought of self when called upon to free their comrades from their living entombment in a mine cave-in.

The other half of the twin hit program brings Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond together again in 'There Goes My Girl.'

It is a clever newspaper romance, and coupled with Miss Sothern's triumph in '30 Roads to Town,' should firmly establish the popularity of this young attractive star.

BEST-SELLING NOVEL NOW IN MOVIE

Not so long ago 'Green Light' stood at the head of the list of best-selling novels of its season. Now, a Cosmopolitan production, 'Green Light,' which will be shown at the Elite Theater for 3 days starting next Wednesday, steps into the front rank of distinctive motion pictures. Co-starring Errol Flynn and Anita Louise, the cast includes Margaret Lindsay, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, George Byington, Walter Abel and Henry O'Neill. The screen play was adapted from the novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, author of 'Magnificent Obsession.'

Collecting Mushrooms Suggested as a Hobby

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Are you looking for an outdoor hobby which can be followed in a leisurely way all through spring, summer and fall and which requires no expensive equipment? Try collecting and identifying mushrooms.

Some of these 'toadstools' are not only still, all fungus growths, of which mushrooms form a group best known to most of us.

Even though you never plan to eat any of the mushrooms you collect it is wise to learn to know the poisonous kinds right at the start.

The only way to get this knowledge is under the supervision of an authority, right out in the field or wood. No test has yet been discovered or invented which has proved infallible in every case.

Some of these 'toadstools' are not only silly but dangerous as well. Years ago an old woman told me that all mushrooms which grew on the north side of trees were edible. The amanitas, among which are the most deadly species almost invariably grow near trees and I have never known them to discriminate as to which side of the tree to grow.

Have An Umbrella Top

The deadly amanitas are not hard to recognize if you are observant. Although they usually grow in woods, they have been found in meadows and lawns, sometimes among the delicious meadow mushrooms. They are tall, long-stemmed species with an 'umbrella' top, a 'veil' just below the cap and a 'cup' at the base. The 'veil' is the thin covering in which the young mushroom's cap is enclosed. As the cap grows the veil is torn to allow the cap to expand in its umbrella shape but the remains of the veil can still be seen hanging in ragged wisps around the stem.

One of the best ways to tell the amanitas is by the spore-prints. These are obtained by taking a fairly mature mushroom, cutting off the stem as close to the cap as possible and placing the cap, gills side down on a black piece of paper. Put a glass bowl over the mushroom to prevent the spores, the dust-like 'seeds,' from being blown away.

Leave the mushroom cap on the paper several hours and then remove it carefully. If you find a white powdery deposit you can be quite sure that this is an amanita. The meadow mushrooms, whose general appearance is somewhat like the amanitas, leave a purple-brown spore-print but that does not mean that all edible mushrooms have purple-brown spore dust. Dangerous species leave a spore-print ranging in color from yellow to pink, red, ochre, purple-brown and black.

Has a Satiny White Cap

The most deadly amanita has a satiny white cap, occasionally you will find some that are darker; yellowish, brown, grey or almost black. The amanita muscaria has a bright yellow or orange cap. If you are collecting mushrooms for an herbarium a good book will take the place of an instructor but if you plan to discover the edible varieties, never rely on the information you gather from printed matter or pictures.

Besides learning to know the different varieties the mushroom hunter will want to know something about fungi as a form of plant life. As unplant-like as they look, they are plants, although of a very lowly order. As in other lowly orders of plants, fungi are reproduced by means of spores, a fine powdery dust which appears in the cap as the plant reaches maturity.

In the common puff-ball these spores can be seen. At first the puffball is firm but as it grows older it becomes dry and collapses like a torn bag of wind. When stepped upon a cloud of 'smoke' arises from the dried puffball. This is made of millions of spores which settle down on the ground and in time form new mushrooms. The spores do not root like other plants but form a white thready mass known as 'mycelium' or spawn. The spawn is really the mushroom plant which remains underground and the parts we see above ground is its fruiting body.

Recipes are Included

Late summer and fall is the season for the majority of mushrooms but several species appear in spring. One of these is the common morel, an edible variety usually found in rich moist woods where elms and oaks grow. Sometimes they grow in old orchards and swamps. Although all morels are edible occasionally the false morel grows with them. This species is generally considered to be dangerous, although not deadly.

'The Mushroom Handbook' by Krieger (Macmillan) is one of the best guide books for the mushroom collector I have ever seen. All the common varieties are pictured with a key for their identification and suggestions for collecting, drying, tagging and preserving. Recipes for cooking mushrooms are included in the book.

Strike May Paralyze Mexican Oil Industry

Mexico City.—Cheering workers nailed red and black strike flags to doors of offices, refineries and storage depots of Mexico's $400,000,000 oil industry Friday, launching a walkout that may paralyze gasoline and oil powered transportation throughout the nation.

Seven thousand companies, many of them foreign controlled, and 18,000 workers were affected by the strike to enforce demands for a shorter working week, higher wages and a blanket labor contract for the industry.

The companies planned an appeal to President Lazaro Cardenas to intervene at the same time asking the federal conciliation and arbitration board to outlaw the strike and order the men back to work.

'Slungum Machine' Extracts Bees' Honey

Mitchell, Neb.—W. T. Brand, honey farm operator, invented a 'slungum machine' for his own use. So successful is his contrivance that its manufacture and sale has developed into a business which can't keep up with the orders.

Slungum is bee glue, old cocoons and other things bees forget to take out of their combs. Brand's machine—he calls it a 'honey capturing melter'—looks like a bathtub, operates with waste steam and uses the heat principal to capture pure honey, beeswax and slungum, or residue, from the cappings or comb sides.

The honey and wax are drawn off automatically, honey from the bottom and wax from the top, but the slungum must be skimmed from the wax occasionally.

Taylor, Stanwyck Team in Picture

'This Is My Affair' Opens Friday Matinee at Rio Theater

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, the screen's most talked-about real-life sweethearts, have been teamed in the picture the world is talking about, 'This Is My Affair,' which opens Friday at the Rio Theater.

The story of a love supremely courageous and unaltered, endangering the nation's highest places and gambling 'life itself' for a greater stake, 'This Is My Affair,' provides both Taylor and Miss Stanwyck with the most important story either of these great stars have ever had, and affords Victor McLaglen, who heads the strong supporting cast, the most opportunity he has had since his powerful characterization in 'The Informer.'

'This Is My Affair' would be a triumph for either of its co-stars, for it presents Robert Taylor in a picture which captures the mood of great romance, and the urge of mighty drama, while Barbara Stanwyck matches his greatness with a fire and power given full scope for the first time. But for Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, it is their supremely dramatic opportunity—to be, to act, to act together, to become greater together.

Setting its scene at the turn of the century, 'This Is My Affair' shows the nation's stability threatened by a series of sensational bank robberies in the middle west. President William McKinley, turned in desperation to a young lieutenant, Robert Taylor, whose record under Admiral Dewey bespeaks his valor. The young officer, sworn to secrecy, is instructed to disgrace himself in the navy, be discharged, and eventually locate the bank-robbing gang and their government informant.

In a mid-western criminals' hangout, Taylor makes the acquaintance of a cafe owner, Victor McLaglen; his right-hand man, Brian Donlevy, and the singing and dancing star of the cafe's show, Barbara Stanwyck. He notes that the two men have acquired large sums of money, and that their absence from the cafe coincides with a bank robbery in another city.

Joining the gang in a robbery during which a secret service man is killed, Robert Taylor is arrested with the others and, in a stirring dramatic climax, faces the prospect of the gallows when the only man who can clear his name, the president himself, is assassinated.

GAYNOR AND MARCH THRILL

Playing to record crowds everywhere, and hailed as 1937's finest picture, 'A STAR IS BORN,' starring Fredric March and Janet Gaynor, is the current attraction at the Rio theatre where it will play through Tuesday. Filmed in the gorgeous new technicolor, it takes you behind the scenes in Hollywood to bring you the comedy, the hatred, the happiness, the jealousy, the ecstasy of a small town girl who made good in the movies.

The other feature attraction on the same bill is 'Behind the Headlines,' a thrill-packed newspaper story featuring Lee Tracy.

STAR IN 'KID GALAHAD'

It's a match the devil must have made, the man you'll always remember as 'Little Caesar,' and the girl you'll never forget as 'Marked Woman,' Edward G. Robinson and Bette Davis teamed with Humphrey Bogart in 'Kid Galahad,' a picturization of the popular Saturday Evening Post story by Francis Wallace, which is currently at the Appleton Theater through Monday. Holiday schedules prevail, Monday, Memorial day. The second feature brings a different kind of western, with George O'Brien as 'The Hollywood Cowboy' who proved that he has what it took. In 'Kid Galahad' you will enjoy a newcomer, six foot three of grin and muscle, Wayne Morris, the screen's next big star, and Jane Bryan, who you remember as Bette's sister in 'Marked Woman.'

Industrial Conference Honors Walter Kohler

New York.—Walter J. Kohler of Kohler, Wis., former governor of Wisconsin, was elected one of four vice chairmen Thursday of the national industrial conference. Kohler is board chairman and former president of the Kohler company, manufacturers of plumbing and heating equipment and electric generating plants.

Horse Gets Obituary Rivaling Statesman's

Washington.—The last of the great-hearted steeds which used to race to fires in the capital is dead. Old Tom, who answered fire alarms all the way from the capitol to the White House in his day, was retired 14 years ago to green pastures on a District of Columbia farm.

He was 26 years old when he died and notices of his death occupied as much space in the Washington newspapers as the passing of a statesman.

'Sing Me a Love Song' Coming Here

Film musical will be shown at Elite Theater Monday, Tuesday

Litling music, rollicking laughter and glowing romance combine to make 'Sing Me a Love Song,' a Cosmopolitan production released through First National, which is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Elite Theater Monday and Tuesday. Bargain days, one of the most entertaining musical comedies of the year.

There is an all star cast headed by James Melton, the radio singer, Patricia Ellis, Hugh Herbert, Zasu Pitts, Allen Jenkins and Nat Pendleton.

The story by Harry Sauber deals with the colorful adventures of a wealthy and somewhat irresponsible youth who goes to work in a department store to find out why the wheels aren't going around as they should. In doing so he falls in love with one of his clerks, gets himself and her tangled up in a series of innocent misadventures which land both in jail. Melton's rich melodious voice will be heard in six songs altogether, three of them written by that famous song team of Harry Warren and Al Dubin, especially for the picture; one written by Jacques Wolfe, while the other two are old timers.

'Ghost Town' Is Left by Industry

Moving of Steel Mill Causes Evacuation of Entire Town

Josephine, Pa.—This once prosperous mill town in the windswept Alleghenies has become a 'ghost city.'

Tall grass grows in the streets where children of steel workers romped. Homes are battered by the pounding of nature's elements. The steel mill, which provided the town's life blood, is gone.

Motorists passing by on William Penn highway call it the gloomiest spot between Pittsburgh and New York.

Lingering Death

The postoffice and a few privately owned homes still are occupied. But nearly 2000 vacated houses jut from the hilltop of the 'company-owned' section.

The town of Josephine's death has been a lingering one of more than a decade—kept alive by hopes of new life. It was founded in 1904, a sort of family affair. It was named for the mother of one of the officials of the McKinney steel company which owned it and two blast furnaces in the valley below.

Old Folks Stay

But handmills went out of style a few years after the war, and the expanding company soon found it could make steel in Cleveland and ship it as far as Josephine cheaper than it could produce it here.

So the plant closed. Rumors flew year after year that it would be reopened, or that the company might start digging into its 5,200 acres of nearby coal land. Last year the mill was dismantled and moved.

The handful of old folks who remain now wonder when the wreckers will start on the houses.

Audience Pleased By Piano Recital Of Barbara Webster

An enthusiastic audience greeted the program presented by Barbara Simmons Webster last evening at Peabody hall. Mrs. Webster, a candidate for the Master of Music degree at Lawrence college conservatory, played Grieg's Sonata in E Minor, Beethoven's Pathetique Sonata, and Schumann's Quinette Opus 44 in the latter selection she was assisted by a string quartet: Percy Fullinwider, first violin, Edward Mumm, second violin, John Bayer, viola, and Edwin Wienandt, cello.

Mrs. Webster's performance at all times gave evidence of careful regard for the musical content of each selection and a real understanding of the great style demanded in its execution. She possesses great technical facility and deserves special mention for a thoroughly adequate performance of Beethoven's "Pathetique" Sonata which demands an emotional comprehension of its varied moods and a technique which can express them satisfactorily.

BOOK REVIEW Ancient Theme in New Setting Results in Thrilling Reading

By Jean Wiley Thickens

To those who can endure having their emotions torn by the most poignant sympathy for its three leading characters, I strongly recommend "Pattern of Three" by Mary Hastings Bradley. As the title implies it is the ancient triad theme, two women in love with the same man, with the inevitable result that one must be the victor, and the other the vanquished.

Eve and Richard Kendall, charming, well-bred and rich, have been married fifteen years and are the parents of a fourteen year old son whom they both adore. Kay Hardy, "the other woman," is decidedly not the usual type of that particular genus. She is far removed from the gold-digging specimen, who sets her rakes up for a wealthy employer because the "pickings" look promising, and she is tired of supporting herself. Until her father's financial crash and subsequent suicide, Kay had been one of the city's most popular debutantes. His death changed her almost overnight, from a pleasure-loving socialite, into a working girl. She is the very efficient secretary of Richard Kendall; sixteen years the junior of her forty year old husband.

The story unfolds against the background of present-day Chicago. There are summers spent in Lake Forest, there is the Saddle and Cycle Club, the Casino, the Outer Drive, the shopping excursions at Carson Pirie's. There are the little French and Italian restaurants on the near-North Side where Richard and Kay enjoy frequent clandestine dinners, in the false belief that they are safe from the cynically amused—or disgusted—eyes of Richard's business and social acquaintances. To anyone familiar with Chicago's bright spots it is especially enthralling.

One might well question the ethics of a young and beautiful girl remaining in the employ of a married man with whom she realizes she is falling in love. Instead of putting the width of the country permanently between them. One might also discuss the ethics of a sophisticated man of the world allowing that same beautiful young woman to sacrifice her good name, and her opportunity to marry an eligible and importunate suitor of her own age, in favor of these backstreet meetings with him; which surely could not lead to real happiness for any of them. But as Bobbie Burns once remarked, when being chided for getting himself into much the same situation a couple of centuries ago, "It's his and there be pots and pans—There's be no need for tinkers."

Richard does not suspect for a moment that his wife Eve has an inkling of his affair with Kay, and she is far too clever and too proud to allow him to find out that she does. Kay, being a woman, knows instinctively that Eve suspects far too much for their own safety. And just as Richard is about to ask for his freedom, that he may marry Kay, their only son is drowned and Richard realizes that he can never be so heartless as to make the request for a divorce. Eve has suffered enough already.

Eve however has other ideas on the subject, and with almost superhuman courage (for she loves her husband far more deeply than either he or Kay suspect) she leaves quietly for France to live, while pretending to her husband and friends that she is only in search of a change of scene to help her recover from the shattering loss of her son. After a few weeks in France she writes Richard that she has found peace in new surroundings, and will give him his release, still not mentioning her knowledge of his love for Kay.

The tragic situation works out toward a most dramatic and original denouement, and demonstrates conclusively the innate nobility and courage of the woman whom her husband believes to be shallow, and incapable of a deep affection for him. The reader is harrowed almost unbearably at times by the mental sufferings of the three, but not for a moment would one consider leaving the book until the closing paragraph has been reached. At the end the reader feels as tho he had passed thru a dark and terrible storm, into warmth and quiet, the memory of the storm will linger always. A charming and sensitive book, and one of the author's best, in a sizeable list of successes.

Immunization of Children Planned

Will Treat Youngsters to Prevent Diphtheria And Smallpox

Kaukauna—Free immunization of the city's children of pre-school age against diphtheria and smallpox by the administration of toxin antitoxin and smallpox vaccine will be held Tuesday, Dr. C. D. Boyd announced yesterday.

Local physicians will treat north side children in the Park school starting at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and move to the South side at 1 o'clock in the afternoon where the clinic will be held in St. Mary's school.

Four years have elapsed since the last program of this kind was completed and since that time no case of either diphtheria or smallpox has been reported in the city and no ill effects from the treatment noted, Dr. Boyd said.

Because of improvements in technique, only one inoculation is necessary now. It is hoped to make this a permanent program and to immunize all children over six months of age who, in the past four years, have not had the protection afforded them.

1,576 Children are Treated at Clinics

Kaukauna—At 12 dental clinics conducted under the sponsorship of the Kaukauna Woman's club from October of 1936 up to last week, 1,576 school children were examined and 114 given treatment, according to a report by Miss Cella Flynn, city nurse. The series of clinics have been concluded until the woman's club starts its next year's activities in October.

Local dentists conducted the examinations, made recommendations to parents, and gave treatment at the clinics held in Miss Flynn's office.

East's Pass to Takeout Double Had Lucky Outcome

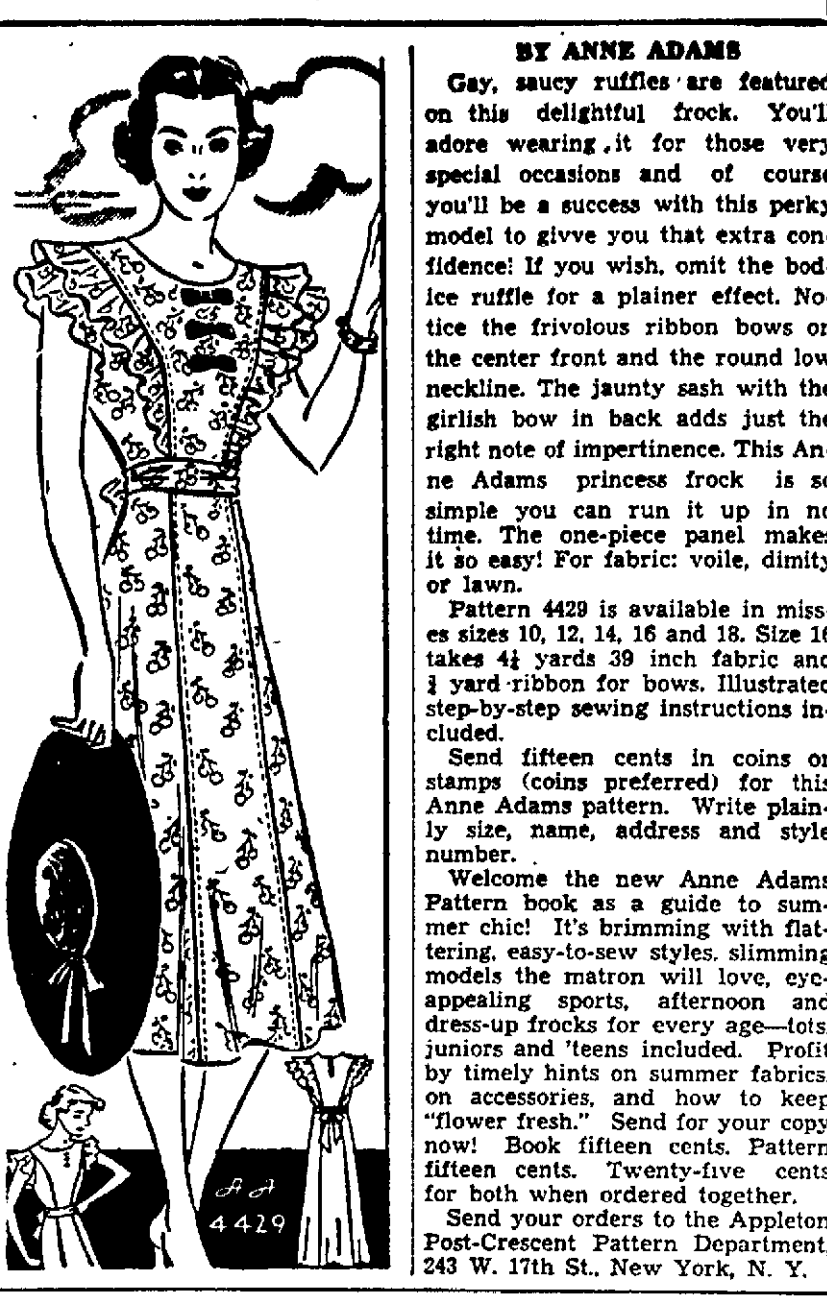

BY ELY CULBERTSON
"Dear Mr. Culbertson: One of the most acrimonious bridge battles I ever have seen was fought over the following hand which occurred in a rubber bridge game. All of the participants involved wish your candid opinion of the bidding and would like to ask you a specific question. This was the hand:
West dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH		EAST
♠ 6 8	♥ 9 10	♠ 7 8 9	♥ 10
♦ 10	♣ 10 8 2	♦ 10	♣ 10 8 2
WEST		EAST
♠ 10 8	♥ 9 10	♠ 7 8 9	♥ 10
♦ 10	♣ 10 8 2	♦ 10	♣ 10 8 2
SOUTH		NORTH
♠ 7 8	♥ 9 10	♠ 6 8	♥ 9 10
♦ 10	♣ 10 8 2	♦ 10	♣ 10 8 2

The bidding:
West North East South
1 diamond Pass 1 heart Pass
2 clubs Pass 2 hearts Pass
3 clubs Pass ?
"The question we want to ask is, what should be his next bid? Should he bid 3 hearts? I may say that he actually did, was doubled, and took the rap for 1,400 points.
"North insisted that his three club bid was a sign-off, but how could he sign off in a minor suit after originally inviting a major response and never bidding the other major himself? My opinion is that his takeout double of one diamond was about the worst I have ever seen. Please settle this heated argument.
"Cordially,
"E. O. West Palm Beach."
Taking up the bids in the order in which they occurred, I most heartily agree with my correspondent's opinion of North's takeout double. It was awful. With support for neither major suit and, in fact, every reason to be "frightened to death" of the likely heart response, North should have confined himself to one of two courses. First, he might have passed in the hope of trapping diamonds. Second, if he felt that there was little chance of the opponents reaching the heights in diamonds, he could, of course, put in a two club overall. This latter would have the advantage of indicating a lead against a possible no trump call by East but, on the other hand, would have the disadvantage of encouraging South to start bidding in the major suits.
I must say that East's pass to the takeout double had a lucky outcome. I am much afraid that I would have spoiled everything by a one spade rescue bid. South should have bid two hearts in response of one heart. West, I should say, deserves credit for his control in passing on this and the next round of bidding. It is apparent that he "knew his opponents" and gave them more than enough rope with which to hang themselves.
There is no question that, as the bidding actually went, South should have bid three hearts over three clubs. His suit was strong enough to stand on its own feet and, if North had a sound and conventional takeout double, there still was chance of a game despite the fact that North had not supported either one or two hearts.
The drastic punishment was, in

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk
On the day after the "Hindenburg" explosion I had a talk with Mr. Elzey Roberts, publisher of the St. Louis "Star-Times." We spoke of the disaster, and he remarked: "It is a strange thing that just one editorial which mentioned the danger to the 'Hindenburg' from the highly inflammable gas it contained."
The editorial read in part: "Somewhere over the broad Atlantic, nearing the United States coast, rides the 'Hindenburg,' the latest and largest of Germany's many Zeppelins. Six million, seven hundred and ten thousand cubic feet of highly inflammable hydrogen gas lift its 285-ton bulk, along with 52 passengers, 56 crew, besides mail, freight and supplies."
I read the editorial with a great deal of interest, and my thoughts turned to the gas which exploded and sent one-third of those on board to their death less than three weeks ago. If the Germans had filled the gas bag with helium, they would not have lost their great airship that day.
Helium is one of the lightest gases known, though it is not quite so light as hydrogen. The name "helium" came from a Greek word meaning "sun," and this gas was observed on the sun before it was found on earth. A Frenchman saw a strange yellow line when he used a spectroscopic to study the gases around the sun during an eclipse. He did not know what kind of gas it was, but gave it the name of "helium."
Sir William Ramsay, a British scientist, was the first to discover it. He found it while making tests on the gas called "argon."
Two Canadian cities, Hamilton and Calgary, were pioneers in producing helium from natural gas. They extracted about 60,000 cubic feet between the years 1918 and 1920. This was not a great amount, compared with the output during more recent years, but it pointed the way to obtain the rare gas. Before the World War, only about one cubic foot of helium had been produced, and it was supposed to have a value of $2,500.
In 1925, the American government began the spending of $10,000,000 to survey natural gas wells and make tests to obtain helium. A large plant was set up at Ft. Worth, Tex. Millions of cubic feet have been produced, most of the world's supply. The cost is now about $11 for one thousand cubic feet. The wreck of the "Hindenburg" may lead all nations which build dirigibles to fill them with helium instead of hydrogen or other dangerous gas.

Light Floral Scents Best In Summer

BY ELSIE PIERCE
On Perfume
M. Y.: You are right about a change in perfume being desirable with the change of season. For spring and summer the light floral odors are usually popular. It is difficult to advise you what perfume to use, since you do not include a description of yourself. However, there are perfume bars in many of the better department stores throughout the country where you can actually select from several odors the one with which you feel you would be happiest. I have a bulletin called "Perfume Secrets" that may help you and I should be pleased to send it to you if you will call for it by name and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.
Too Much Oil
V. A.: You say your hair is overly oily, your skin too and that there seems an overabundance of superfluous hairgrowth on the face of late. All these things point to an overactivity of the oil glands. I would advise you to check carefully on your diet and try to cut down on fats, starches, sweets, fried foods. Add more salads, fresh and dried fruits, vegetables—simple, wholesome foods. Use an astringent tonic for your hair (and shampoo once or twice a week with a pure castile soap). After the shampoo use a lemon or vinegar. For your skin use soap and water, a mild astringent, a liquid make-up base. Try bleaching the superfluous hair on your face. Get out of doors, plenty of fresh air, sunshine, exercise, drink enough water, double check the matter of elimination—this is very important. I have two bulletins I should like to send you: One—My General Health Rules and Balanced Diet; Two—My Superfluous Hair Bulletin. Please send for these if you wish them and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.
Posture for Tall Girl
Anxious Mother: You are absolutely right in urging your daughter to stand and walk straight. One of the biggest mistakes tall girls make is cultivating the habit of walking with shoulders hunched or stooped in an effort to look shorter. I can't see why they should want to look shorter, since out beauty standards call for taller and taller girls. Anyway, the tall, straight persons are called "regal and queenly." The stooped-shouldered individual who is tall can't really look short. . . she only succeeds in looking less lovely, her clothes don't look so well because her carriage is poor, and what is more her chest cavity is cramped and she may have some underlying health as well as beauty. My Posture Rules will help—I'm sure. If you will write enclosing a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope I shall be happy to mail them to you. ## Dix Questions Wedding For Head and Not Heart

BY DOROTHY DIX
Dear Miss Dix—Don't you think that there would be a great less divorce if, before they married, young people would ask themselves: "Why am I in love with this girl or boy? What qualities does he or she possess that makes me think that I want to spend the balance of my life with him or her?"
A MAN.
Answer:
Undoubtedly. But it would virtually silence the wedding bells if lovers stopped to psychoanalyze each other and ascertain what it was that made them feel that-away about that particular girl or boy. For we are all in the Doctor Fell class when it comes to our emotions. The reason why we cannot tell why we are attracted to one individual and repulsed by another when both apparently are of equal worth and have equal charms.
I doubt extremely if any man in the world ever knew why he fell in love with the woman he did. It was just something tangible about her that caught his fancy. Something different that made him want her. She wasn't sweeter or more sympathetic than a thousand other girls he had met, but somehow he knew she was just the one for him.
And the same way with women. No girl knows why she falls in love with Tom instead of Harry. It just happens. That's all. A lad she never saw before, and of whose good or bad qualities she is totally ignorant, comes whistling down the street. She sets up and follows him because she knows intuitively somehow he is her man.
As a matter of fact, we don't love people for their virtues. No man falls in love with a girl because she is a good cook, or because she is industrious, or because she teaches Sunday school, or because she is kind to her old parents, or because she is the sort of a girl who would make a good wife. On the contrary, he is far more likely to fall in love with some little flibbertigibbet who is pretty and attractive and lively and who has a way with her.
Nor does a girl fall in love with a man because he is a settler and sober and has a prosperous garage. She is more likely to fall in love with a good-looking scamp with a light foot and a nimble tongue and who knows more about making love than he does about making a living.
Or we would marry the fat rich widower who is a pillar in the church, instead of the wild youth whose very presence makes life gay and exciting. But would we be happier if we did, and if we married for our heads instead of our hearts?
Dear Dorothy Dix—I am very much in love with a girl and we are thinking about getting married this summer. I am 19. She is 18. Our parents on both sides are much opposed on account of our age. They say we are too young, and when we tell them that they were married in their teens, they say things were different in those days. Young people could afford to get married. I don't believe that those days were any different from these days. It is only what people make of them. Do you think that we should get married, despite objections of our parents?
DOUBTFUL BUD.
I don't think that any man has a right to marry and expect his parents to support his wife. If you are able to earn enough money to provide for yourself and your wife and the babies that are sure to come, then you may possibly be justified in defying your parents and marrying against their wishes.
But it is a dastardly thing for a boy to marry and lay the burden of another family on his poor old father's and mother's shoulders. It is a shameful thing for him to do because he is taking advantage of his knowledge that their love for him will never permit them to let him suffer they will work a little harder and deny themselves a little more and do without the comforts they had expected to have in their old age.
For most people bringing up a family of children, feeding and hand-aided by the state, then the bride's family is far over at the side.
Dear Mrs. Post: Is an usher expected to ask a guest whom he does not know "Are you a friend of the bride or groom?" so that he will know on which side to seat her?
Answer: Yes, always.

Boys Need Companionship Of Others Their Own Age

BY ANGELO PATRI
Boys have to play and work and live together to get the best out of their growing time, which is all too short. No grown person can ever take the place of companions of the boy's own age. They learn quickly and easily from each other, accept guidance, praise and punishment from each other and thrive mightily while they would wilt under the same treatment from a well-intentioned adult.
It is a great mistake to keep a boy closely confined to his own company, and that of his family. He has to get beyond the family limits to sample life, test it, make it work. There is a great difference between working with a member of the family and working with an outsider. The family contribution is likely to be coals to Newcastle. The child knows every wrinkle of thought in the family group and gains little except bare experience by close association with it. Every outsider has another point of view, another way of thinking and doing, and the newness stimulates the children.
Boys more than ten years old have to hunt in packs. They gather in bunches at recess, at playtime, and they all talk at once, move together in the same direction, do the same thing about the same time and argue endlessly about it. That is a pattern of boy life, and it is a healthy one to follow. The hut and the gang and the club are as essential to these youngsters as milk with their cereal in the morning. Prepare the way for them.
Just as soon as it is possible let the lad join the Boy Scouts and encourage him to take the whole course. He will get fun out of it and much education not found in books. He does what his associates do, and if that is good to do he is in the midst of goodness multiplied by the numbers in the squad. He draws strength from his brothers who are all going the way.
At this stage of a boy's life a hike along a country road with a campfire lunch at the end of it, a scouting trip through the woods, or along a stream, a fish hooked and laid in the basket in anticipation of supper before the camp fire spells deep delight. When the last bite is eaten that night, the cleanup finished and the group piles up more

Good Taste Today

BY EMILY POST
WEDDINGS
Dear Mrs. Post: I am a little confused about seating our families and friends at church. There are two diagrams in your book—one of the church that has a center aisle and another one of a church having two main aisles and the center occupied by a double row of pews in a solid block. Our church is like the latter, and naturally I have studied that diagram carefully but I still can't understand. In the church with the center aisle the bride's family and friends sit on the left facing the chancel and the groom's family and friends of course sit on the right. In the two-aisle church you have designated the reverse order of seating. In other words, the bride's family and friends sit in the pews on both sides of the right aisle and the groom's family and friends in the seats on both sides of the left aisle, which is used for the recessional. Will you clarify the reason for this turned about seating?
Answer: The seating in the diagram is not really "turned about" if you realize that the seating must be according to the position of the pews on the aisle and not according to the positions of the aisles in the church. However, let me try to explain. Obviously the pews in the center are the important ones, rather than those at the side, and since the bride's parents occupy the first pew on the left side of the aisle it is necessary that this aisle be the one at the right because the front pew on the left of the left aisle would be a side pew. For this same reason the groom's parents sit in the right-hand front pew on the left aisle. Conventionally the procession goes up the right, or "bride's" aisle, and the recessional comes down the left or "groom's" aisle. Occasionally the direction of the procession is reversed, in order to allow the bride to face her family as she comes down the aisle after the ceremony, and to allow the groom to stand directly in front of his own family as he greets his bride, instead of far over at the right. But this is not the correct arrangement. Sometimes in a double aisle church, only one aisle is used and in this case, if it be the right-hand one, the groom's family sit way over at the side. Or if the left much room. Hope you have a good day.
Help a good idea along. Root for your own Scout and never miss a chance to cheer for the crowd. The boys need both the Scouts and the cheers.
Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and boys regarding the care and development of children. Write him in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Old Gardener Says:
By E. I. Farrington
Dahlias are among the good garden flowers which may be planted rather late. They are at their best in late summer and autumn, when the weather is beginning to get cool. Of course, all garden makers are familiar with dahlias of the usual type but there are many who have not yet become acquainted with the dwarf varieties, most of which have been imported from England. Their use is suggested now in gardens where geraniums and begonias have become commonplace, for they are charming bedding plants. Their use for making beds has become widespread in recent countries and there is no reason why the dahlia should not be adopted here. Dwarf dahlias are well worth adding to the amateur's planting list.

Many Women Now Hold Positions in Alaska
Salt Lake City.—Alaska's only woman attorney told a club federation meeting here that women are making a place for themselves in that Territory, but not without a struggle.
"Alaska formerly was a man's country, all right," said Mrs. Mildred R. Hermann of Juneau. "Now several women are holding important offices. This year we had our first woman Legislator. There are five or six United States Commissioners. I'm the only woman attorney."
"Alaska is becoming club-conscious," she said. "We have approximately 700 women in fourteen federated clubs. There are no Eskimos in the federation, but they have their small individual clubs. There have been business women in Alaska almost since the first settlement. The professional and political activities are new and were not accepted without a fuss."

SYNOPSIS: A storm breaks and every thing starts happening as Michael, his sweetheart Gay Palmer and I (Jim Wells) reach his aunt's home, Farrington Bluff, for a February weekend. In the night, Mike awakens me as a chimney crashes, shouting that Jude Blinshop, the fourth guest, and the Skipper, his tall and tweedy younger aunt, have disappeared. With William, the chauffeur, a gun and flashlight, Michael and I start to search the island. At the bathhouse, Michael slips over the wet rocks in his eagerness and falls into the black, churning surf.

CHAPTER FIVE
THE BODY ON THE BLUFF

EVEN as I realized that the dark object was Michael, William moved. He threw the coats, my heavy one on the end. Michael was yards to the right of us and the coats went straight out. But William's eye was good. In a flash Michael was washed toward us, and the coats were blown toward him. As they met I lent my free hand to the tug. In one surging swell he came in. We pulled like madmen. Headlong, Michael was tumbled onto the ledge.

He lay, horribly still. Throwing the coats to me, William bent over. With one lunge he heaved Michael over his shoulder, and slowly, laboriously, we edged our way back to the path. Despite the care with which we laid him down, one arm was twisted under him. Blood was flowing from a slash on his head.

Luckily my hip pocket still contained the flask with which I had reconciled myself to that ride in the rumble-seat. I raised his head and forced a little whiskey into him. Possibly minutes ticked by. The roar of the blood in my ears drowned out the combined wind and surf. And then finally he moved. It was impossible to catch what he said. He insisted on getting to his feet and stood there, swaying, covered with blood, dripping wet, and altogether unpleasant to look at.

William roared, "Back to the house, sir!"

We thought Michael understood, for he started along the path before we could get the overcoat around him. As we came abreast of the tennis courts, Michael paused and signaled for the light. The backstock was down, a tangled jumble of wire, and the wet clay was a soft mush. In between the two courts, running straight toward the bathhouse, a set of heavy footprints showed that someone had been too impatient to take the path. The Skipper, Michael was off like a shot.

At the drive we lost them. Too much water had poured over that gravel to leave any sign of anything. It seemed to me that where ever she was, the Skipper would agree that Michael needed attention at once. We were directly in front of the house. I grabbed him and shoved him, struggling and protesting, up the steps and into the house.

One Arm Hank's useless.

We were a mess, all three of us dripping and coatless. William still wore rubber boots and a sea-weather. His trousers and his pajama top were plastered against him as if by mucilage, and his lips were blue. But Michael was Exhibit A. His face was a pasty white, smeared with blood. His right arm hung useless at his side and his clothes were in shreds.

"Damn you!" His roar gathered volume as William closed the door behind us. "Let go of me, I'll--"

But he didn't do anything. A piercing scream from the dining-room announced that he had been discovered. M. Farrington bore down upon us, babbling as she came.

"Michael! Michael! My poor boy, what--"

I caught a glimpse of Gay behind her and of Higgins behind Gay when Michael put an end to the scene. In her stress of feeling, M. Farrington clutched his bad arm and Michael crumpled quietly to the floor.

Then things began to happen. M. Farrington promptly went off into hysterics. Gay knelt beside Michael. Higgins stood wringing his hands, and William stared dumbly at the general proceedings.

"He fell on a rock," I said to

Gay's mute white face. "Higgins, ring for Annie and take Miss Farrington to her room. Lend a hand here, William."

In spite of his aunt's protest we picked up Michael and started for the stairs.

"I'm going to call a doctor," said Gay at my elbow.

"He can't get through. The bridge is down."

"There are boats," she said quietly.

It was something of a job to get Michael upstairs. He's no feather-weight, and below us M. Farrington was giving efficient proof of Higgins' lack of skill as a lady's maid. We got him into his room and on to the bed, where a penknife made short work of what was left of his clothes. The gash in his head was wide, but not too deep. His knees and shins were merely scraped, but the arm was a different matter.

"It ain't broke, sir. I think it's his shoulder."

I nodded. We patched him up as well as we could and brought him around. It took him only a second to collect himself. His voice was hoarse.

"Did you find them?"

I shook my head. In the midst of our efforts to keep him in bed, Gay appeared behind me.

"The wire's down," she said dully.

Well, I had expected it. "Listen, Mike," I said. "You're staying right here. If you promise to do it, we go on hunting. If you don't, we'll stay right here and hold you down."

Once or twice a year I succeed in convincing him that I mean just what I say. I did it this time. He stared at me for half a minute.

"All right. Only hurry, for God's sake!"

"I'll get them," I promised.

The sound of shrill sobs downstairs. Annie and Cook between them had managed to remove M. Farrington to the library, whence the sound of her shrill sobs was distinctly audible. William and I climbed into dry coats and tested the Skipper's Scotch. It was good Scotch.

"I suggest, sir, that we go out the west door. If you was to go round the front and me round the back, we could cover quite a lot of ground, meet at the east side, and go on to the garage."

"O. K.," I said. "For God's sake don't fall off the bluff!"

So we parted. Either the gale was gathering force or we were losing it. Going was hard and thinking was worse. Where the devil was the Skipper? And Judge? What was that girl up to anyway?

I thought nothing of reaching the end of the house ahead of William. Going, I reasoned, would be harder for him on mushy sod with no protection against the wind. But by the time I had been there several minutes, it was beginning to get me. And then I heard something--a faint shout in the distance, calling my name.

It was coming from the direction of the bluff. I forgot the danger of dashing over the edge in the darkness. I forgot everything and began to run toward that voice. Long before I could see anybody I could see the light, and I believed at the top of my lungs as I came. William was standing not 20 feet from the edge of the bluff, and I was still some distance from him when he turned his light downward.

There, without hat or coat, face downward in the mud, lay Jude Blinshop, still clad in her bright blue dress and silver slippers.

Call 'Expert' to Get Him Into Office

Tulsa, Okla.--(P)--Go up to the jail and get me a good burglar," shouted County Attorney Dixie Gilmer when he came from court and found his office door night-latched on the inside.

Sandy Cullison, county investigator, returned with a Negro prisoner.

"Don't need no ladder," said the Negro. He "shinned" up the courthouse wall 15 feet to a window, "jimmied" it in three minutes and unlocked the door from the inside.

"Thanks. The evidence won't be used against you when your case comes up," said Gilmer.

Fist Fight Breaks Up

Guilid Negotiations

Milwaukee.—P.—Negotiations on a working contract for Milwaukee Sentinel editorial room employees broke up in a fist fight last night when an American Newspaper Guild organizer objected to being photographed by a non-Guild cameraman.

John O. Kykyri, chairman of the Milwaukee Guild's negotiations committee, said the fracas started when he lapped for Leland Benfer's camera after Benfer had touched off a flashlight bulb attached to his camera despite objections raised by Don L. Stevens, the A. N. G. organizer.

A request for the picture had come from Chicago. Stevens had agreed to pose but objected to a non-Guildman taking the picture. In the melee, Paul Holmes, executive editor of the Sentinel, and Stevens exchanged blows. Holmes said he went to Benfer's aid after "three guildsmen" leaped upon him. W. M. Thomson, chief accountant and a Sentinel representative in the negotiations, seized the camera and ran from the office.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

May 26, 1937.

The regular weekly meeting of the Board of Education was called to order by Mrs. Shannon, vice-president.

Members present: Mrs. Shannon, Messrs. Boyer, Behnke and Benton. Mr. Smith, of Smith & Brandt, architects, showed a sample of the artificial stone to be used for the spandrels in the new high school.

Mr. Boyer moved that this material be approved. Seconded by Mr. Benton and carried.

Mr. Smith also showed blueprints of the proposed ornamental work to be used around the entrances of the academic section.

Mr. Benton moved that these blueprints be approved. Seconded by Mr. Behnke. Carried.

The following letter concerning the strength tests made on the concrete cylinders taken from the work which has been done to date at the new high school building:

This concrete consists of basement walls and footings. The greatest stress or load which this concrete will be required to carry is 800 pounds per square inch.

The average strength of seven representative cylinders which have been broken to date at an age of seven days is 1439 pounds per square inch.

The only cylinder broken at an age of 28 days so far has shown a strength of 4237 pounds per square inch.

During this early part of the work considerable experimenting has been done in proportioning the quantities of sand and stone so as to produce the strongest and strongest concrete. We believe the contractor has now arrived at a very satisfactory proportion.

Some of the gravel which has been delivered to the job has been found to have an excess of clay. This material has been rejected and inspected when delivered and any which shows dirt or clay in excess of the specifications is promptly rejected.

The concrete which is to be used for the beams, slabs and columns should show a strength of 3000 pounds per square inch at the age of twenty-eight days. Some of this strength the specifications call for a richer mixture to be used for all such work.

We wish to assure you that in our opinion all of the concrete poured to date is amply strong to carry the calculated load. Test cylinders are being taken from each day's pour and are carefully tested to determine their strength at both 7 and 28 days.

Yours very truly,
SMITH & BRANDT,
ESCHWEILER & ESCHWEILER,
Associated Architects.

By GEO. L. SMITH, Architect.

EDM. A. C. Eschweiler, Jr., Mr. Benton moved that the report of the architects relative to the test of concrete pourings be approved and placed on file. Seconded by Mr. Boyer and carried.

Mr. Boyer moved that at the next regular monthly meeting of the Board we report progress up to 20 per cent of the contract price. Seconded by Mr. Benton. Carried.

Mr. Boyer moved that Miss Morgan be authorized to sign the insurance certificates that had been presented. Seconded by Mr. Benton and carried.

Little Chute, Kimberly Play At Home Over Holidays

Kaukauna Club Invades Chuter Park Tomorrow

Kimberly Shows Against Two Rivers at Village on Monday

NORTHERN STATE LEAGUE
	W.	L.
Little Chute	3	1
Two Rivers	1	1
Kaukauna	1	1
Manitowoc	1	1
Oshkosh	1	2
Green Bay	1	2
Kimberly	1	2

SUNDAY'S GAMES
Two Rivers at Manitowoc.
Kimberly at Green Bay.
Kaukauna at Little Chute.

MONDAY'S GAMES
Green Bay at Kaukauna. (Postponed to night game next month).
Manitowoc at Oshkosh.
Two Rivers at Kimberly.

BASEBALL followers in the Northern State league will have a pretty fair pair of contests for their indulgence over the weekend with a game at Little Chute Sunday afternoon and at Kimberly Monday afternoon. Originally they could have had a ball game Monday evening at Kaukauna but the Kaws have decided to defer the contest until June 10 when it's warmer and the grass isn't so wet.

The feature contest, of course, will send the Chuters against Kaukauna over at Little Chute and will start about 2:30. The Hollanders are riding the crest with three wins and no defeats, despite a rather puny batting mark, and are primed to hang up No. 4, all of which the Kaukauna club is certain they won't do. Kaukauna has won one game and lost one, the defeat being against Oshkosh last week and the thought of Little Chute stopping the Electric City nine just isn't considered.

Little Chute probably will rely on Dick Weisgerber Sunday because it gets a break in the schedule and doesn't play Monday. The Chuters would have played De Pere had De Pere remained in the loop. Weisgerber has been turning back all comers with his curve and his slow one has only difficulty being a tendency to forget location of the plate when the curve won't break properly.

Back of him he'll have an infield that looked mighty good last week with three double plays and some nice fielding, generally. His outfield also boasts of speed and some pretty fair throwing ability.

Haven't Been Hitting
The biggest weakness of the Chuter team is its inability to hit. The Hollanders got only one more blow than Kimberly last week but they capitalized on two wild pitches. During the last week Manager George Vanderloop has emphasized batting practice in all drills.

Kaukauna has a ball team which looks about as powerful as anything in the circuit. And because it has postponed a night game with Green Bay to later in the season, the Kaws, too, will have only tomorrow's contest to worry about and therefore will use their best lineup. Reports are that the Electric City will toss a chap named Sonny Cavanaugh who hails from Upper Michigan and turned in some top games last season. In one contest he tossed for Menominee against the Kingsford team with Kaukauna's present manager, Howard Bowers, and allowed only three safeties. The Kaws also have secured Peck of Menasha as catcher. He has been released by Little Chute. Baldy Eggert will be at first, Vondrasek at second, Powell at short and Zelenki at third. In the outfield, the three smallest gardeners in captivity will show. Manager Bowers, Arnie Kelly and Joe Vils.

In the other game Sunday afternoon, Kimberly will invade Green Bay confident of stopping the Green Bay Sox and Two Rivers will show at Manitowoc in a lake shore battle. Kimberly is confident of a win over the Sox for it feels any team that gets six runs in the first inning and then loses, isn't so hot.

Kimberly at Home Monday
Monday afternoon Kimberly will play its second home game in a week with Two Rivers at the opponent. The Rivers will be showing in the Valley for the first time this season.

Art Behr probably will draw the mound assignment against Two Rivers. Lefty tossed a mighty nice game last week against Little Chute and if he hadn't uncorked his two wild pitches and his mates had hit at opportune times, he might have won. Widenberg or Kosloske will do the receiving. The latter worked a couple frames last week and showed a bullet-like pop to second and smacked the ball hard although he didn't get on base.

Swen Bowman will show at first base and Buck LeMay probably will be seen at second base with Turley Horn at short and Butts Strick at third. Both Horn and Strick topped the apple for fair last Sunday getting five of the seven hits the Papermakers got.

In the outfield there will be Cully Zinth, who should start hitting after his flop last week. Cashman, who also is a pretty fair stickler under ordinary conditions, and Stoeckbauer, who can ride the ball—when he connects.

Two Rivers is the defending champion in the league and although it has been bumped it has power. The smogoke brothers, who were with a Brewer farm, have recently rejoined the squad but Buck Krause still is conspicuous by his absence.

CARRY ON FOR MICKEY COCHRANE
Cy Perkins (left) and Dell Baker, Detroit Tiger coaches, directed the Tigers as they played the Yankees while Mickey Cochrane, Detroit's catcher-manager, who suffered a fractured skull when hit by a pitched ball, remained in a serious condition in a New York hospital. Perkins and Cochrane are known as the "Damon and Pythias" of baseball.

Cochrane's Chances for Recovery Better Today

New York — (AP) — Definite improvement was noted today in the condition of Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, who suffered a skull fracture when he was struck by a ball pitched by Bump Hadley of the Yankees.

In their final bulletin last night, Drs. Robert Emmet Walsh and Bryon Stookey said, "The signs are encouraging."

A morning bulletin signed by Drs. Byron Stookey and Robert E. Walsh said:

"Cochrane had a good night. Condition satisfactory and has made some progress."

Pitchers Hard on Batting Stars in Both Major Loops

Ducky Medwick of Cardinals and Joe Cronin of Red Sox Still Lead

NEW YORK — (AP) — The pitchers turned on the heat in the big leagues this week and, although they failed to dislodge the current batting leaders, they had a lot of fun turning the first ten set in each loop upside down.

Even Ducky Medwick of the Cardinals and Joe Cronin of the Red Sox, who are still in first place in their respective circuits, found the going tough during the seven-day span ended with yesterday's games. Medwick topped three points to 430, while Cronin, getting only five hits in 20 times at bat, fell 39 points to 404.

Of the few batters who escaped the general let-down in averages, jarring Joe DiMaggio of the World Champion Yankees was easily the top cluster of the week. He collected 15 hits in 28 chances, something better than a 500 clip, to boost his average 68 points to .364 and climb from 30th place to fifth. Big Ben Greenberg, of Detroit, climbed from 317 to 349.

Standings of the first ten in each league:

AFTER allowing five runs in the first inning, Stan Tesch steadied and held the Woolen Mills to one hit in the last eight innings while his Post-Tuttle mates were scoring six runs for a 6-5 victory in the American Softball league last night. It was Tesch's first appearance on the mound in a league tilt.

Post-Tuttle scored the winning run in the seventh when Des Shade singled and stole second. Sheezy struck and O. Strutz then walked. Shade went to third when Kelly skied to right and scored when Mortell scrambled W. Strutz's grounder.

The Woolen Mills bunched four hits, two walks and three Post-Tuttle errors in the first inning to score five runs. After that scoring spree, the team was held to one hit while receiving three walks.

The squad lost a chance to win in the sixth when runners on second and third with no outs, a squeeze play failed. Ganzan fanned and Kelly popped to Kelly.

Kelly cracked a homer in the fifth on a hit which took a bad bounce and got past outfielder Dunsmuir. Post-Tuttle scored single runs in the first, third, fifth and seventh frames and got two tallies in the second inning.

Ward Cuff Leads Six Javelin Throwers in Intercollegiate Meet
	W.	L.
Ward Cuff	500	0
Post-Tuttle	121	0

NEW YORK — (AP) — Ward Cuff, husky Marquette university senior, led six qualifiers in the javelin throw event at the Intercollegiate A. A. A. meet yesterday with a toss of 195 feet, 1 inch.

His throw was slightly more than two feet under the winning distance achieved last year by Alton Bell of Maine.

John Woodruff, the University of Pittsburgh's long-striding Negro, led Pitt's squad in the trials with a brilliantly run quarter mile of 48.1, and also qualified in the half mile. The Panthers placed six entries in the finals and four in the semi-finals.

Dartmouth, Cornell, and Yale put eight men each in today's finals and semi-finals and Columbia's indoor tilts, co-favorites with Pitt to take the title, their first outdoors since 1879, sent six to the finals and one to the semi-finals.

Otherwise, the highlight was a 14-hit bombardment the Pittsburgh Pirates exploded on the St. Louis Cardinals for a 10-3 win, thereby stretching the Bucc National league lead to a game and a half over the idle Giants.

The Chicago Cubs found Cincinnati pitching easy and clubbed out a 12-3 decision behind Charley Root's steady tossing. The rest of the league had an open date.

The Chicago White Sox outlasted the Cleveland Indians and came through with a 3-2 win on Zeke Bonura's timely two-bagger in the tenth inning. The start of the Yankee Athletic series was delayed a day by rain and was carried over to a doubleheader today.

Vike Tracksters Score 25 Points at Beloit; Take Three First Places

BELOIT — (AP) — A pair of great sprinters, Wesley Stookey and Don Wedgebury, paced the Coe college track team to an impressive victory in the first Beloit relays here last night.

Athletes from 12 Midwestern schools performed under flood lights before an audience of 2,500. Stookey and Wedgebury ran in three of the four relay races won by the Cedar Rapids, Ia. college. Stookey also raced to a 10 second victory in the 100-yard dash, with Wedgebury placing third. Coe men scored in nine events.

The point scoring gave Coe 60, Beloit 45; North Central of Naperville, Ill., 34; Carroll of Waukesha, Wis., 27; Lawrence of Appleton, Wis., 25; Augustana of Rock Island, Ill., 19; Dubuque of Dubuque, Ia., 13; Ripon of Ripon, Wis., 12; Bradley of Peoria, Ill., 9, and Cornell of Mount Vernon, Ia., 8.

Lawrence's points rated it fifth in the scoring despite the fact the Vikings did not point for the meet, entered only three men in the special events, entered an 880-yard relay team at the last minute and entered a frosh medley sprint relay team.

Of the men entered in the special events one took a first and a third.

Wonsler and Risch led the Presbyterians' batting. Wonsler clouted out three hits and scoring one run in two trips to the plate and Risch tapping two hits in three trips. Al Kranzusch cracked two hits in four times at bat for the losers and Wagner, Lutheran's third baseman, scored two of the five runs. Harmanson, winning pitcher, allowed only five hits and cracked one of the 11 safe bingles for the Presbyterians.

2 Die, 5 Injured In Speed Trials At Indianapolis

Drivers Back at Track for Final Qualification for Holiday Event

INDIANAPOLIS—(P)—Sobered by the death of two men and injury of five others in accidents which marred a quest for new speed during preliminary test runs, drivers returned to the brick and asphalt track of the Indianapolis motor speedway today for final qualification trials for the 500-mile race Monday.

George Warford, 42, Indianapolis race driver, and Albert Opalko, 28-year-old riding mechanic from Gary, died in the receiving ward of City hospital shortly after they were injured in the two accidents.

Otto C. Rohde, 49, of Toledo, O., vice-president and chief engineer of the Champion Spark Plug company, remained in a critical condition at the hospital early today. Frank Mc Gurk, 25, Los Angeles, and Overton Phillips, 30, of Midland, N. Y., race drivers, also were at the hospital, both seriously hurt while injured of Walter King, 27, of Birmingham, N. Y., and Anthony Caccia, 30, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., were believed to be less severe.

Crankshaft Cracks
Phillips was driving his car down the straightaway at more than 100 miles an hour when the crankshaft cracked. The car was hurled into the pits lining the track and struck another speedster, being tuned up by Vern Orendorff of Philadelphia. The cars immediately became a blazing pyre.

Warford, Rhode and Caccia were standing near the Orendorff car and neither were struck by the speeding car or showered with flaming gasoline. Both Phillips and King, a student at the Cornell University Medical school who was riding with Phillips during practice, were thrown out of the speedster. Opalko received fatal injuries when another race car driven by Mc Gurk, the only driver to make a qualifying test during the day, went out of control and crashed on the southwest curve. Mc Gurk had completed four laps at a speed of approximately 120 miles an hour. Both men were hurled clear of the wreckage as the car was whirled about along the safety apron and through an inner wall.

Pastor Clouts Win Over Nestell

New Yorker Whips Californian in 10 Rounds At Los Angeles

Los Angeles—(P)—A possible match with Max Schmeling was the talk in the air today after New York's Bob Pastor whipped Bob Nestell of Los Angeles last night in a heavyweight fight which had nearly 30,000 screaming fight fans, including film celebrities, on the edge of the seats for 10 rounds.

The go started out like a cyclone and ended nearly as fast. In the first round Pastor scored a knockdown for an 8-count. Nestell got up, swung to Pastor's jaw and the New Yorker hit the deck, sitting down.

Pastor came up without taking a count, and again in the third sank Nestell for 8. From then on it was Pastor's fight, with the California Bob continually threatening, but seldom exploding, his terrific right punch.

Pastor weighed 183, Nestell 191. Constance Bennett has replaced Lupe Velez as the most exciting fan at the boxing matches in and around Hollywood. In the first round, it was her piercing shriek that sounded above the roar of the crowd.

Clark Gable and Carole Lombard held hands during the tense moments. Bing Crosby and his wife, Dixie Lee, were with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wheeler. Directly in front of them were Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler.

Strong Beats Kustoff

Marion—Birmingham High school baseball team defeated Marion here Friday afternoon 1 to 0 when Strong got the best of Kustoff in a pitchers' duel. Kustoff allowed only three hits to Strong's five, but an error in the sixth inning was responsible for the winning run.

It was the second duel staged by the two pitchers, and the second won by Strong. In the last meeting Kustoff hurled 2-hit ball, but two walks and one of the hits were bunched to give Birmingham a 2 to 0 win.

Design For Fighting CHAMPION. CHALLENGER

A SWIG of water helps after a few fast rounds with sparring partners coached to fight like Louis.

THE CHAMP looks a bit cynical as he relaxes under the shower at his outdoor training camp.

CHALLENGER
KENOSHA, Wis.—(P)—Remembering that happened after he trained badly for the fight in which he was kaybed by Max Schmeling a year ago, Joe Louis is earnest about his tune-up for the title shot in Chicago against Champion James J. Braddock. Punching the bag is every-day routine.

TRAINER Jack Blackburn gives Chappie's face a coat of vasoline to prevent cutting.

PLENTY of work like this gives assurance that the Brown Bomber won't be "blubbery" when he meets Braddock.

THIS exercising reduces the paunch that slowed Louis when he lost to Schmeling.

Johnny Rizzo's Bat Hits Hardest For Columbus "9"

Red Birds' Outfielder Qualifies for Batting Honors in 37 Contests

CHICAGO—(P)—The American association batting picture may be considerably changed by next September, but young Johnny Rizzo of Columbus already has qualified as one of the bright stars of the current campaign.

The Red Birds' outfielder led all association batsmen for a third straight week with a plate mark of 428, only one point under his average of the previous seven day period, according to averages made public today and which included Thursday's title. He had hit safely in 37 straight contests, led in hits, with 62, in total bases, 101, and in triples, with nine.

In second place was Catcher Johnny Pask of St. Paul, with a mark of 353, representing a 29 point slump. Gil English of Kansas City held third position with an average of 380, 13 points better than Eckhardt, the Indianapolis outfielder.

Other Leaders
Other leaders were: Ralph Boyle, Kansas City, 361; Stanley Spence, Minneapolis, 354; Lynn King, Columbus, 352; Slaughter, Columbus, 346; H. Taylor, Minneapolis, 345; and Red Kress, Minneapolis, 338.

Lyn Storti, the slugging Milwaukee third sacker, was the doubles leader, with 14, with Ted Gullic, also of the Brewers, held the lead in homers, with nine. Lynn King of Columbus had pilfered 15 bases and Gullic had driven in the most runs, 42.

Among the hurriers, Bill Zuber and Forrest Pressnell of Milwaukee held the lead with five wins and no defeats, each having participated in eight games. Max Macon of Columbus had won the most games, eight, but had lost two. Macon also was the strikeout "king," having fanned 45.

Minneapolis clung to the association batting lead with an average of 313, representing a decline of 11 points during the week. In second place, nine points back, was Columbus.

The team fielding leadership again was held by the Champion Milwaukee Brewers, with a mark of 380, one point below their previous record. Five points back was Toledo.

Columbus led in double plays, with 49.

Nettlow Favored To Win Over Greb
38 Rounds of Boxing
Scheduled on Milwaukee Card for June 1

Milwaukee—Al Nettlow has been installed an early betting favorite over Larry Greb in their bout at the Milwaukee auditorium on Tuesday, June 1. The sharks like the sharpshooting Nettlow who looked every inch a champion in his last two starts here against Roger Bernard and Frankie Terranova. Greb, on the other hand, has been idle since he injured his maulers in the Terranova fight April 16.

However, Greb, drilling every day at Ritchie Mitchell's gym, has been pounding away at sparmates and the big bag and talk of Nettlow being an early betting favorite is spurring the "Texas Killer" to feverish action.

Nettlow, who was a winner on America's Golden Glove team during Poland's invasion of 1934, is working out in Chicago where he has a class of sparring mates, including Champion Barney Ross and Davey Day. Manager Pat Kennedy says that Nettlow will be in the best shape of his young life.

As though sensing a great fight in the offing, the fans are flocking to the Auditorium and gobbling up choice reservations. Thirty-eight rounds of boxing has been booked. Featuring the prelims are such stalwart scrappers as Tony Bruno, Frankie Misko, Tony Cioccolari, Young Scotty Johnny "Rooster" Gaudes, Bud Dempsey, Wilbur Dunn, Henry Hamburg, Les Morris and Joey Mattheson.

Filz Stars as Kobals Score Win Over Medina
With Filz hurling steady ball and striking out 18 batters, the Kobals' tavern softball team romped to an 11-2 victory over the Medina club yesterday at Medina. Cramer, Medina pitcher, allowed seven hits while striking out 15 but was wise and the local club took advantage of eight bases on balls. Kobals scored four runs in the first, one in the third and two in the eighth before Medina scored its two tallies.

Geenen's Storage System Guarantees Real Bank Vault Protection to Furs

"Safe as a bank vault" is about the tops in security, most women will agree. What's more, most women would like to store their furs in such a vault although the price for storing a fur coat in a bank would naturally be prohibitive and not altogether convenient.

It was with this fact in mind that the fur storage vault at Geenen's was designed and constructed. This vault is literally a bank vault—built of reinforced concrete and protected by a regular vault door. And, surprisingly enough, it offers greater protection to furs than a standard vault because it is chemically treated with pure crystal Paradichlorobenzene—a chemical deadly to moths and vermin, yet absolutely harmless to furs.

In Geenen's Fur Salon, on the Second floor, meanwhile, women are gathering to see the smart new advance fall models of Norris Lea fur coats that have been arriving daily. Norris Lea furs are exclusive Appleton with Geenen's and have been purchased by hundreds of women. If you, for one, haven't seen these new furs during the past week, you're sure to enjoy your visit. Earlier this year, the Geenen's fur storage vault was remodeled to provide greater space for the hundreds of women who wanted Geenen's fur storage. This greater vault markedly low and all work is guaranteed.

Heading Geenen's fur salon and fur storage department is Irving Cohen, for more than 20 years an expert in furs of all kinds. His experience as a fur manufacturer, designer, remodeler and consultant is at the call of every woman who comes to Geenen's.
